ASKS CONGRESS FIX U. S. ROLE IN NEW LEAGUE

Vandenberg Offers Plan to Byrnes

BY WILLIAM STRAND
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5—United States representation in the security council of the new allied nations organization must be established by congress thru legislation specifying the status and powers of the nation's delegate, Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] said today. In a letter to State Secretary Byrnes, he declared that the promise of legislation to implement American participation in the league was "clearly implicit" in the senate debates which preceded approval of the San Francisco Charter.

Sen. Vandenberg

Vandenberg urged that the spirit of coöperation between the legislative and executive branch in trying to maintain world peace be continued. He warned also that "extreme care" must be taken to assure procedure adhering to the Constitution.

"In my view," he said, "this can be done without impairing the necessity that the united nations organization be able to move with swift and certain expedition in the use of coöperative force to keep the peace if such necessity arises."

Police Quota of Troops

Vandenberg said it must be remembered that a subsequent agreement is to be made between the security council and the United States covering this country's quota of military units to be held by the league to enforce the peace. His letter continued:

"I take it that this initial quota will be a 'policing' quota and not a 'war' quota. In any event, this is a matter within our subsequent control. It is also to be remembered that any resort to sanctions, whether military or otherwise, is subject to our vote in the security council. It is this latter fact which makes the action of our delegate of such importance to us, to our congress and in our country."

Urges Senate Confirmation

Vandenberg suggested that the legislation require the delegate to the security council be nominated by the President and confirmed by the senate. He also proposed that the delegate have the rank, pay and general status of an ambassador.

In this manner, he explained, the delegate will be acting under instructions from the President with the latter, in effect, making the actual decisions regarding the use of United States military forces or participation in sanctions.

"It would, of course, be unthinkable and wholly without constitutional warrant," Vandenberg asserted, "if these decisions were made on his own responsibility by a nonelected Presidential appointee. If it is necessary to spell this out, it should be done."

Annual Reports Asked.

The President should also be required to submit annual reports to congress detailing United States activities in the allied nations organization, the senator said, and special reports whenever he instructs the American delegate to vote for sanctions, military or otherwise.

"This will leave the President free to act, as must be the case if this phase of the charter is to be effective," his letter stated.

Vandenberg urged that the legislation require the President to obtain explicit congressional authority for the commitment of any United States forces beyond the quota established in the basic agreement with the security committee. It has already been announced that the American agreement to supply troops to the new league will be in the form of a joint resolution by both houses of congress requiring a simple majority rather than a treaty requiring two-thirds approval by the senate.

Hawaii Mars Crashes; All in Crew Saved

Rock Hall, Md., Aug. 5 (AP)—Launched two weeks ago, the 138 passenger Hawaii Mars, largest flying boat in operation, sank in Chesapeake bay today when a rough landing ripped her hull during a test flight.

Where flying boat sank.

One member of the 10 man civilian crew, R. S. Noble, a flight test engineer, was injured.

A navy announcement said the landing was semi-controled, but its force caused the damage.

Crewman Tells of Crash

A crewman, who declined use of his name, said that the mishap occurred after a vertical fin broke off while the ship was cruising at 6,000 feet. As the craft shuddered and seemed headed for a spin, the crewman said, Lt. Comdr. William E. Coney, the pilot, ordered crew members to don parachutes.

Then the pilot ordered "stand by." He kept the ship on keel and the Mars nosed into the water at 125 miles an hour, the crewman continued. He said the impact sent loose fixtures flying.

Coney, who spent more hours piloting the original Martin Mars than any other person, had been loaned by the navy to the Martin company to test the Hawaii Mars.

Plane to Be Salvaged

The 72½ ton behemoth, sister ship to the original Mars, will be fished out and returned to the plant, the navy said.

The plane, launched in Baltimore last July 21, was still undergoing tests at the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft company. It was the first of 20 super-cargo carriers built for the navy but had not yet been commissioned. It had a wing spread of 200 feet and her four 2,000 horsepower engines could fly the plane at more than 225 miles an hour.

The navy's announcement said:

"The Hawaii Mars was damaged in a semi-controled rough landing off Love point in Chesapeake bay at 3:05 p. m. [2:05 Chicago time] today. The force of the landing caused the hull to open and the craft sank.

"The Martin company is making preparations to return the plane to the plant.

Investigation Under Way

"Only one member of the 10 man crew was injured. He is R. S. Noble, a flight test engineer, who suffered cuts and contusions and possible internal injuries. He was taken to South Baltimore hospital in a navy ambulance.

"Pilot during the test flight was William E. Coney, test pilot. No cause is ascribed for the accident and an investigation is being conducted."

Fishermen said the bay is about 20 feet deep where the Hawaii Mars rests.

The Martin company said members of the crew included E. R. Gelvin, co-pilot; G. E. Pitcher and T. C. Barnhill, flight engineers; W. B. Bergen, H. V. Cooper, and H. R. McConahy, flight test engineers; R. Drenning, flight observer, and B. J. Neuhardt, weight engineer. All live in Baltimore.

RETURN OF THE VACATIONISTS

Crinkle of Bills and Tinkle of Coins Spur Spirits' Ardor

(This is the second of a series of articles based upon an investigation of Chicago's mediums by Miss Rose Mackenberg, former investigator for Harry Houdini, the magician.)

BY E. W. WILLIAMSON

Yesterday's article disclosed how unscrupulous mediums are preying on grief-stricken mothers and wives of service men lost in battle.

Today's article will deal with our visit to several spiritualist gatherings and what we saw and heard.

Miss Mackenberg and I began our investigation at random, by attending a Sunday afternoon meeting in the Midland hotel, 172 W. Adams st., which we saw advertised in a newspaper. It was conducted by Mrs. Catherine Larney.

We entered a room filled with rows of chairs, facing several tables at the front. About 30 persons were present, including several children. As soon as we sat down, a young woman collected a 25 cent donation from each of us, and gave us a slip of paper upon which to write a question for the medium to answer. Then we sang some hymns, which were followed by a healing session.

Children Take Part in Rites

Two of the children took their places in chairs in front of the tables, facing the audience. One was a fat boy whom you automatically would address as Butch if you met him on the street. There didn't seem to be anything wrong with him. Butch had the grace to smile sheepishly while one of the healers caressed his head and shoulders.

The other child was a girl with pigtails. To the unpracticed eye there didn't seem to be anything wrong with her either. She chewed gum solemnly while being healed.

The spirits had been kind to one of the healers. She wore diamonds on both hands. The other wore black stockings and high top shoes.

After some desultory talk about spiritualism Mrs. Larney, whose delivery is vaguely reminiscent of the man on the radio who used to talk about Lavinia, his pet gold fish, announced the collection.

Miss Mackenberg nudged me and said, "Give 'em a dollar."

"Why?" I asked.

"They notice these things," she replied.

Spirits Dislike Tightwads

This appeared to me an insufficient reason. Nevertheless, I put a dollar bill in the basket, silently hoping The Tribune auditor would stand for it. I noted that several others did likewise.

Meanwhile Mrs. Larney was mentioning that too small a contribution would be an insult to the spirits. The slips of paper were collected and Mrs. Larney sat briskly down and began getting spirit messages.

Prompted by Miss Mackenberg, I had written on my slip "George: Are you still suffering? When are you coming home?" It was signed "Dan." Miss Mackenberg had written "Walter, have you seen Bill? Is he with you? Florence."

When the medium came to my slip she assured me that George was happy. George was supposed to be a brother in the army. I have no brother George. The medium had a little trouble classifying me. She said she saw some one with a paintbrush, but that was a blank. Then she felt something about an architect, but that was a blank, too. I wasn't very quick on the uptake.

Conjures Up Fictitious Sister

But when she said she was getting a message from some one named Martha, who came thru as a WAC, Miss Mackenberg came to my rescue and reminded me that Martha was my sister. But Martha didn't come thru very well, except that she didn't seem to like what she was doing in the spirit world. I acknowledged that this was characteristic, and the medium beamed. I have no sister Martha.

The medium assured Miss Mackenberg that Walter and Bill were together and that both were happy. Bill didn't suffer, she said, altho

LIST 16 MILLION AS MART PRICE

Broker's Fees Estimated at $613,000

The figure for which the Merchandise Mart was sold by Marshall Field & Co. to Joseph P. Kennedy of Boston, former ambassador to Great Britain, was reported yesterday as 16 million dollars. The price was not included when announcement was made two weeks ago that the world's largest privately owned building, which had been valued at more than 30 million dollars, had been sold.

Indirect confirmation was given by John J. Reynolds, New York real estate broker, who represented Kennedy. He was asked about reports that his commission on the sale, at 3 per cent plus expenses, amounted to $493,000.

"Well," he said, "you may quote me as not denying it."

Believed Largest Commission

In addition, Reynolds was reported to have received $120,000 for negotiating a new mortgage. The total, $613,000, was regarded by real estate operators as probably the largest commission ever paid in the country on a single realty deal.

The new mortgage, made by the Equitable Life Assurance society, was reported to be for $12,500,000. When the deal was closed, Kennedy is said to have paid 1 million dollars down and agreed to pay $2,500,000 by Dec. 1, when, it was announced, title will be transferred.

Usual Fee 5 Per Cent

Altho the customary brokerage fee is 5 per cent of sale price, Reynolds is said to have undertaken the deal for 3 per cent and expenses. It is reported that he worked several months to bring Kennedy and Fields to agreement.

Hughston McBain, president of Marshall Field & Co., could not be reached for comment last night.

EXPECT STALIN TO FIGHT JAPS IF PRICE IS MET

Seeks Concessions from China

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5—The general expectation in official Washington is that Russia will join the United States, Great Britain, and the other allies in the war against Japan at no distant date.

No surprise is manifested by administration officials that no announcement to this effect was made by the Big Three at Potsdam. On the contrary, they would have been profoundly surprised if any such announcement had been made.

It is not doubted that Russian army staff members discussed with American and British officials the strategy and disposition of forces that would be called for in the event of the entry of the soviet union into the war. But that Russian Dictator Stalin committed himself definitely to join the war is regarded as unlikely.

Got What He Wanted

It has been noted that Stalin got just about everything he wanted at Potsdam without making any important concessions, tho he may have cultivated a lively anticipation on the part of President Truman and the British that in due time he would be found in there swinging alongside of them in the far east.

The reason for the doubt that Stalin committed himself definitely to fight the Japs is the knowledge in diplomatic circles here of his dickering with China on the price of Russia's participation. This dickering began when T. V. Soong, the new Chinese premier, flew to Mossow last month and held a series of conferences with Stalin. The negotiations were interrupted by Stalin's departure for Potsdam. Soong returned to Chungking but is now going back to Moscow to resume the bargaining.

Seeks Inner Mongolia

Stalin wants an understanding with China on what he is to get out of the war if he goes in. So far as is known he is not trying to upset the Cairo agreement of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek that Manchuria shall be restored to China and Korea given independence.

But he is intent on adding Inner Mongolia to the Russian sphere of influence which already includes Outer Mongolia, on regaining the railway and other privileges Russia formerly enjoyed in Manchuria and on the recognition of the communist power in North China. Not till he is satisfied of Russian gains in these areas is Stalin likely to unsheathe the sword against Japan.

Another development that may have figured at Potsdam is the rift between Mr. Truman and the new British labor government on the conduct of the war in the far east. Mr. Churchill joined with Mr. Truman at Potsdam in the ultimatum to the Japs that stated what they must expect by unconditional surrender.

Attlee Disavows Action

About the first thing the new British prime minister, C. R. Attlee, did was to dissociate himself from Churchill's action in joining the President in this ultimatum, supposedly because the labor government espouses the left-wing demand of no quarter for Hirohito.

Australian Foreign Minister Evatt denounced Churchill for not consulting Australia and the other dominions and Prof. Harold Laski, labor party spokesman, commended Evatt today and said he did not share the regret that no action on Japan was taken at Potsdam.

The President will return to Washington this week and soon thereafter will take to the air with his explanation of what he did and did not do at Potsdam. His explanation is looked to for illumination of the official announcement which disclosed that Britain and America agreed to Stalin's original revision of the map of eastern Europe and demand for 50 per cent of the German reparations while Stalin in return withdrew his proposal to use German forced labor in rehabilitation of Russia and agreed to immediate trial of war criminals and the admission of the press to Poland and German satellite countries.

Army May Ask Studebaker's Aid on B-29s

Wright Plant Idle

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 5 (AP)—Violence that marked the Wright Aeronautical corporation strike during the night was missing today as 20,000 workers stayed away from their jobs, throwing the huge plant which makes engines for the B-29s, into complete idleness.

William Strieder, special investigator for Hamilton county, reported that seven automobiles were overturned last night on roadways leading to the plant, and said rocks and bottles were hurled thru the windows of other vehicles.

Meanwhile, officials of local 674, United Automobile Workers [CIO], said a picket line of 150 men was on a 24-hour duty at entrances to the plant.

The strike began Friday as 400 workers walked out in protest over the suspension of 14 fellow employes.

Army spokesmen said last night a decision will be reached within the next several days on whether to to reopen a Studebaker corporation plant in South Bend, Ind., to manufacture critically needed parts for the B-29 Super Fortress bomber engines, because such production is beyond the capacity of the huge Dodge Chicago plant.

This disclosure came less than a week after settlement of the 204th strike in the Dodge plant since May, 1944. The strike, as had all the preceding ones, interfered with production of engines and spare parts needed by our airmen in their battle of the total destruction of Japan.

Parts Requirements Boosted

Col. R. L. Finkenstaedt, commanding officer of the central [Chicago] district of the air technical service command, said the progress of the war in the Pacific caused the army to boost its requirements for parts.

"The production of these necessary parts is beyond the capacity of the Dodge plant in Chicago," Col. Finkenstaedt said.

Tool Makers Start 204th

The 204th strike at the Dodge plant, which came as the air force was pressing home its all-out attack on the Japanese homeland, was started July 24 by 82 toolmakers, about the same number necessary to man about eight Super Forts. They quit because several had been docked for quitting 15 minutes early each night to wash their hands before the whistle blew.

Soon 20,000 employes, half of them affiliated with the CIO's United Automobile Workers union local No. 274, joined the walkout. The union subsequently denied that washup time pay was the issue and listed a number of grievances, including charges that the Chrysler corporation management had violated seniority rights, fired one worker illegally, and laid off another because he went to court in response to a subpena.

GURKHA VETERANS OF JAP WAR CALLED HOME AFTER 3 YEARS

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

NEW DELHI, India, Aug. 4 [Delayed]—The little Himalayan kingdom of Nepal is recalling some of the nearly 300,000 soldiers it has contributed to the war against Japan and Germany. Indian army headquarters announced today that eight regiments of infantry and a pioneer battalion of Nepalese state troops were returning after more than three years in India and Burma. Some of the units helped capture Mandalay and Rangoon.

Few states have put more fighting men than Nepal into the field in this war in proportion to population. Stretching across 500 miles of the mountains and valleys between India and Tibet, Nepal has a population of 5,000,000. The titular head is the king or Maharaja Dhiraja, but the real ruler is the hereditary chief minister, Maharaja Joodha Shum Shere Jung Bahadur Rana.

For nearly a century Britain has recruited from the warrior castes of Hindu Nepal the soldiers whom all the world knows as Gurkhas. They have always made up a good part of the Indian army.

BIG FUEL PLANT BLASTED; P-51'S BATTER TOKYO

Super Forts Drop 3,850 Tons

GUAM, Aug. 6 [Monday]—(AP)—At least 580 Super Fortresses smashed early today against four of the 31 Japanese cities on their condemned list with more than 3,850 tons of incendiary and high explosive bombs which touched off towering fires.

The B-29s struck Nishinomiya-Mikage, Imbari, Saga, and Maebishi, all of which were cities that have been given advance warnings they would be destroyed by the American raiders. They also pounded the Ube coal liquefaction factory at Ube with demolition bombs for the second time in two weeks.

The strike raised to 14 the number of forewarned cities against which the Super Forts have made good with heavy raids.

Only One Plane Lost

The Japanese reported the raids, too, but contended only 130 planes participated. They put up little fighter opposition and meager anti-aircraft fire, which cost the Americans one plane. Returning crewmen said results were good to excellent, leaving huge fires in the target areas.

The big bombers also laid mines in Japanese home waters, and a small force of Super Fortresses ranged down to the once powerful enemy base of Truk and dropped 45 tons of bombs on the Moen air field No. 1 without opposition.

Sunday afternoon, in advance of the B-29 strikes, 98 P-51 Mustang fighters from Iwo raided the Tokyo area, following up a similar blow by 97 Iwo Mustangs on Friday.

Gen. Spaatz, chief of the United States strategic air forces, who announced the series of blows in a bulletin, said three Mustangs failed to return from the Sunday raid and six were missing on Friday.

Destroy Six Locomotives

The Sunday Mustang strike destroyed two Japanese planes and six locomotives, probably destroyed another plane, set two oil tanks afire, and damaged a plane, several factories, four locomotives, several railroad stations and cars, seven small boats and other targets. The only enemy interceptor they encountered fled.

About 140 United States Liberator and Mitchell bombers and Lightning fighters from Okinawa attacked Kyushu Island for more than two hours Sunday, the Japanese announced.

A later broadcast said 130 Super Forts struck Sunday from 10 p. m. to midnight at three cities in Honshu north of Tokyo. They were listed as Takasaki, Shibukawa and Maebashi. The latter is 75 miles northwest of Tokyo and is one of the cities forewarned by the 20th air force that it was marked for destruction. "Some damage" was caused in the city, said Tokyo.

Lumber Town Hit

Gen. MacArthur's bulletin today reported that more than a score of Mitchell bombers, riding the tail end of a typhoon over Kyushu on Saturday, set fires at the lumber town of Takanabe, damaging three factories, railway yards and a bridge. They had been prevented from attacking Japan the previous two days by bad weather.

Adm. Nimitz announced a series of small strikes by land-based naval planes on Saturday and Sunday. They sank a small cargo vessel and shot down two enemy interceptors near Ise bay, Honshu; sank a 2,000-ton freighter and a smaller vessel off Shantung province, China; and beached a cargo ship and 10 landing craft in the Kurile Islands.

Adm. Nimitz also announced that Liberators of the Aleutian based 11th army air force attacked the Kataoka naval base and Kokutan cape in the Kuriles Friday and navy search planes raided small shipping off Japan and the China coast Saturday.

In sweeps of the Asiatic coast and waters surrounding Formosa, 7th fleet Liberators destroyed or damaged 22 enemy small craft. A navy Liberator caught four luggers off the Chinese coastal city of Foochow, sinking one and bombing and strafing the others.

JAPS WIPE OUT 50,000 CIVILIANS, CHINESE CHARGE

Report 1,000 Die of Poison in Town

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 5 (AP)—Official Chinese reports, released as Chiang Kai-shek's troops converged on the old Flying Tigers' air field at Lingling, alleged tonight that 50,000 Chinese had been killed by the Japanese or were missing from the area of the recently liberated city of Kanhsien, 240 miles north of Hong Kong.

The reports asserted that the Chinese residents of Kanhsien district in southern Kiangsi province were killed or disappeared during a six months' Japanese occupation. Kanhsien, site of a former advance base of the United States 14th air force, was rewon by the Chinese two weeks ago.

Japs Inject Poison

No details were given, but a Chinese Central News dispatch alleged that more than 1,000 civilians had been murdered in the Yangtze port of Ichang—westernmost Japanese bastion in central China. The report asserted the Chinese died of "poisonous injections," forcibly administered by the Japanese, who claimed they were inoculations against meningitis.

National troops increased their pressure on the approaches to Lingling and battled on the flanks of a "floating pocket" of an original force of 20,000 Japanese troops withdrawing along the Kan river from Kanhsien to Nanchang. While bitter fighting raged on the approaches to Tungan, Chinese forces approaching the Hunan province air base city from the southwest encircled a Japanese-held strongpoint on the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad.

The Chinese high command said the rail town of Tajungkiang was completely surrounded two days ago and the Japanese garrison was being attacked. Chinese spearheads, however, have by-passed Tajungkiang and are battling near Chuanhsien.

Reoccupy Town

Three hundred miles to the northeast the Japanese pulling out of southern Kiangsi province toward Nanchang made further gains, the high command admitted. Following in the wake of the Japanese, Gen. Chiang's troops reoccupied Kishui. The Chinese also were attacking the rear of the Japanese pocket on the outskirts of Siakiang. Other forces attempted to check Japanese vanguards which were approaching Sinkan.

American Mustang fighter-bombers bombed and strafed an enemy-held village near Kian, provisional capital of Kiangsi province, and destroyed and set fire to Japanese buildings at Fengsin.

MOSCOW NEWSPAPER CRITICIZES JAP PRESS OVER BERLIN PARLEY

MOSCOW, Aug. 5 [Reuters]—The first criticism of the Japanese press published here for many months appeared today. "Many Japanese papers did not hide their hopes that the Berlin conference would be a failure," Pravda declared.

Sections of the Swedish, American, and Turkish press were also taken to task for their pessimistic attitude towards the conference.

"Red Fleet," official organ of the soviet navy, devoted an unusual amount of space to the situation in the far east. It described allied fleet operations in the Pacific. A second article dealt with the soviet Pacific fleet.

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 5—The August quota of 28,000 enlisted men and 400 officers scheduled for return to the United States under the point system of redeployment and readjustment was announced today at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters. This is the largest quota of three made for this theater since the plan went into effect in June.

With shipping available to carry men back it is expected that almost all of these will reach home by the end of September. The total for the first three monthly quotas is approximately half of all enlisted men in the Southwest Pacific who have the necessary 85 points. On May 12 the theater had about 115,000 personnel eligible for return.

In the past only combat troops were returned by air and there has been no change in this policy. Planes are now being devoted largely to return of personnel scheduled for temporary duty in the United States and quick return to this theater.

BRING IN A NIP, GET A HOME TRIP, YANKS PROMISED

WITH THE U. S. 32ND DIVISION, Northern Luzon, Aug 6 (AP)—Fugitive Japanese generals holed up in this region now are worth something—a 45-day furlough home for any soldier capturing one alive.

Maj. Gen. William Gill announced this bounty as the American-Filipino noose tightened on several enemy generals believed to be in mountain hideouts. They reportedly include Yamashita, whom doughboys no longer call the "Tiger of Malaya." They call him "The Gopher of Luzon."

Gill said any Yank bringing in a live general would receive a 45-day furlough to the United States regardless of his eligibility.

GREAT TRAIN OF SHIPS SUPPLIES HALSEY'S FLEET

ABOARD U. S. ESCORT CARRIER NEAR JAPAN [Date Censored]—(AP)—This is "shopping day" for Halsey's 3d fleet, and the "slave traders," as the supply ships call themselves, are peddling their wares right in Japan's back yard.

Adm. Halsey's great armada loomed up on our horizon almost at the appointed hour to keep its rendezvous with our supply train, which spreads for miles over the home waters of Japan.

At first mere specks, Halsey's fleet soon began to take shape—big, trim Essex class carriers, Iowa class battleships, cruisers, and a host of destroyers.

Signal Their Needs

Then the trading began. Big and little combat ships began signalling their needs for flyers, planes, provisions, and fuel. The blinker lights flashing across the water sometimes were barely distinguishable, for this rendezvous area is called Typhoon Junction, and the weather was squally.

As soon as orders were placed, destroyers went to work, running back and forth between supply ships and those of the fleet. This transfer of supplies, largest ever carried out, went off as smoothly and methodically as if it were being done in some big department store back home.

Business was good. The giant carriers needed flyer replacements and planes. Long before daylight, officers and crew of this carrier began stirring about. They were ready for the job by the time the first destroyer pulled alongside.

Aside from planes flown off escort carriers' decks, all transfers were made by what the navy calls a whip—a pulley system rigged on a heavy rope strung between destroyer and supply ship.

See No Jap Planes

Despite the audacity of this replenishing job, which enables the fighting fleet to prowl waters thousands of miles from its own major bases for weeks, not a single Japanese plane has shown up. Yet the transfers are going on within easy range of the enemy's land based aircraft.

This escort carrier was loaded with Hellcats and Avengers to replace those destroyed or damaged during the 3d fleet's bombardment and bombing of Japan in the last 18 days of pre-invasion softening.

She is only one of many small carriers in this convoy—which has more destroyers screening it than the remnants of the Japanese fleet could muster all told.

The 3d fleet is taking on more than 62,000 tons of fuel oil and more than 1,800 tons of provisions and equipment in this resupplying job.

Illinoisan Saved by Sub in Sight of Fujiyama

ABOARD AN ESCORT CARRIER, NEAR JAPAN, July 29 [Delayed]—(AP)—Robert Stallsworth of Tuscola, Ill., was one of 13 men saved by the same United States submarine after their planes had crashed off the coast of Japan within sight of Fujiyama. All were afloat on rafts when picked up. Sent to a rest camp for recuperation after their rescue, they stayed but one day, then asked to be allowed to rejoin their carrier squadrons for more cracks at the Japs.

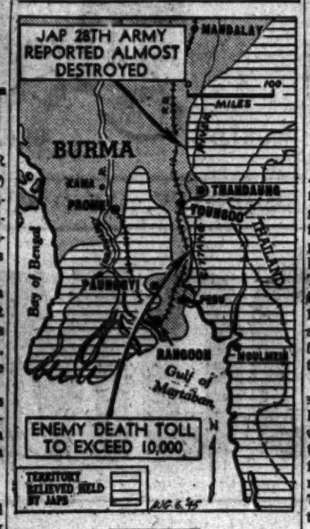
War in Burma



BRITISH DESTROY JAP 28TH ARMY FLEEING BURMA

Kill 10,000 in Battle of Sittang River

CALCUTTA, India, Aug. 5 (AP)—Adm. Mountbatten's headquarters announced today that the Japanese 28th army, which has been seeking to break thru a British cordon on the Mandalay-Rangoon road to join other enemy forces in Thailand, has been "almost completely destroyed."

The announcement came as headquarters reports said the toll of Japanese dead in the battle of the Sittang river in lower Burma had risen to more than 10,000.

A special bulletin described the Japanese force as the "remnants of the imperial Japanese 28th army which was very badly mauled in Arakan by the 15th Indian corps commanded by Lt. Gen. Philip Christison." During the fighting in Arakan, the bulletin said, the Indian troops inflicted 3,300 casualties on the 54th and 55th Japanese divisions.

River Full of Bodies

There were indications that the death toll of enemy remnants attempting to break across the Sittang river to Thailand might rise well above 10,000. Another bulletin reported that uncounted numbers of enemy bodies were floating downriver toward the sea north of Nyaungliebin.

Near the river banks the British met tough Japanese opposition in the Nyaungliebin area, and 30 miles upstream British patrols clashed with the enemy east of Penwegon and inflicted casualties.

Clear Jap Positions

In the lower Sittang area, Mountbatten's headquarters said, allied patrols ran into determined enemy resistance east of Abya, 22 miles northeast of Pegu on the Pegu-Martaband railroad. After four attacks, the British cleared Japanese positions on the rail line curving round the Sittang estuary, but encountered artillery supported Japanese opposition in the southern half of a village two miles east of Abya.

Supporting ground troops, Spitfire fighter-bombers attacked Japanese positions in the Sittang river bend, while a Sutherland flying boat on armed reconnaissance in the Gulf of Siam damaged two enemy coastal boats, two twin masted schooners, and 10 other enemy vessels.

VET WHO RAIDED 3 AXIS CAPITALS LOST WITH B-29

GUAM, Aug. 5 (AP)—Tech. Sgt. Kurt J. Hermann, one of the air force's fightingest aerial gunners, who fought off enemy planes over Berlin, Rome, and Tokyo, is missing in action on his 108th combat mission, the 20th air force announced tonight.

Tech. Sgt. Kurt J. Hermann

The 26 year old enlisted man from Babylon, N. Y., who refused more than one chance to hang up his uniform, was striving to complete 110 missions. His Super Fort from the 73d bombardment wing failed to return from an incendiary attack against Kochi, on Shikoku, July 4.

Today the 20th air force disclosed one of the most fabulous careers of any man in the armed services.

Twenty-Six Days on Life Raft

Hermann served in the merchant marine and spent 26 days on a life raft after his ship was torpedoed. He parachuted from a crippled bomber after an attack on Sardinia and landed unhurt beside a field hospital.

The sergeant enlisted in the air forces in August, 1942, after his experience in the merchant marine. He went overseas as a waist gunner on a Fortress with the 12th air force in North Africa.

He bagged a German Messerschmitt before transferring to a Marauder outfit where he knocked down three more enemy fighters and made his parachute jump after the Sardinia attack. Then in July, 1943, he took part in the first bombing mission against Rome, and was awarded a furlough.

Hitch-Hiked to United States

His furlough papers allowed him to proceed by any means available and he took them at their word. He hitch-hiked by plane to La Guardia field, New York, in 19 days. But he wanted more action and requested transfer to the 8th air force in England. He attracted the attention of Gen. Arnold, air forces chief, who called him to Washington. Soon Hermann was with Lt. Gen. Doolittle's air force as a waist gunner on a Flying Fortress. When things were dull he volunteered to fly as an observer with the royal air force on night missions and was in on the first aerial bombardment of Berlin.

Completing 75 missions, a record for an aerial gunner, Hermann was due to return to the United States. He obtained from Gen. Spaatz, then commanding American air forces in Europe, a letter recommending him for Super Fort training. He was too late for the first Super Fort strike against Tokyo, but he saw the Japanese capital innumerable times from his tail gun position.

Then came word of the army's point system, and he was told he could hang up his uniform. He elected to remain on Saipan until he had completed 110 missions.

JAP REMNANTS BEATEN BACK IN LUZON ATTACKS

Company Wiped Out; 4,740 More Die

MANILA, Aug. 6 [Monday] (AP)—Small forces of Japanese, resisting the American cleanup on Luzon, counter-attacked at two points on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, it was disclosed today, but all were beaten back and one company was annihilated in another operation.

During the week 4,740 Japanese dead were counted and 444 prisoners were taken, raising enemy casualties for the entire Philippines campaign to 443,012, Gen. MacArthur's bulletin announced. American casualties for the week were 27 dead and 61 wounded.

Fall Back to Trenches.

Two squads of Japanese counter-attacked Saturday northwest of Kiangan, in the rice-terrace country of northern Luzon, but were forced to fall back into a well prepared trench system where they still have cover of mortars and light artillery.

In Luzon's southern Cordilleras near Mayayao, Philippine army units repulsed successive counter-attacks on Thursday and Friday in less than company strength.

During the week an enemy company which had been active in setting ambushes against the Americans in northeastern Luzon was wiped out east of Tuguegarao and in the Sierra Madre foothills near Pena Blanca.

6,000 Hold Out on Luzon

Four-fifths of the enemy's casualties for the week occurred on Luzon, where an American spokesman estimated 6,000 to 7,000 Japanese are holding out.

Mitchell bombers of the 13th air force gave close support to the ground operations, strewing jellied gasoline and explosive bombs in the Mankayan-Kiangan sector. This method of attack has accounted for a large measure of enemy casualties in past weeks.

Marine Corsairs and Helldivers performed similarly on Mindanao, where other forces of Japanese still are holding out.

U. S. HALTS OFFICER'S TRANSOCEAN WEDDING TO AUSTRALIAN GIRL

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 5 (AP)—United States authorities stepped in today and called off a transoceanic marriage which Lt. R. L. Knox of Minneapolis, Minn., proposed with his Australian fiancee.

Knox cabled Miss Joyce Broderick of Killara, near Sydney, asking her approval of a proxy wedding to be solemnized by long distance telephone.

Knox said he had received approval of the Minneapolis County court, but a United States consular official said "no" and neither the army nor United States immigration authorities would recognize the marriage. Knox met Miss Broderick in Sydney in May, 1943.

QUARRELS, JUMPS, BREAKS HIP

Raymond Kamradt, 35, of 4955 S. Wood st., jumped from a kitchen window of his second floor apartment and received a fracture of the hip last evening. His wife, Gladys, said they had quarreled.

PLOT TO WRECK PAPER CHARGED BY TEXAS EDITOR

40 Suits Seek $400,000; U. S. Investigates

BY WALTER TROHAN
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5—The department of justice is investigating an alleged conspiracy to interfere with the freedom of the press in Laredo, Tex.

The inquiry is centering on a reported collusive attempt, by means of libel suits, to put the daily Laredo Times out of business and to drive its crusading owner, William Prescott Allen, out of Laredo. The civil rights division of the department of justice is in charge of the investigation.

The issue of press freedom has interested the American Civil Liberties union and various newspaper organizations as well as individual newspaper owners.

Loan Program Criticized

The conspiracy, as alleged by Allen, grew out of a series of editorials and articles in the Laredo Times attacking the Laredo Rotary club for efforts to collect loans advanced to soldiers from the club's student aid fund.

One of the articles included a letter of reproach from the mother of a soldier who died on Guadalcanal. The letter enclosed $60 for repayment of a loan advanced the soldier, for which he was being dunned at the time of his death.

Allen, a former president of the Rotary club, charged that his rights as an independent publisher have been violated by a collusion of state officials and private citizens, who brought 40 libel suits against him.

A conviction on charges of criminal libel was obtained against Allen in one of the actions and is being appealed. Other suits are to be tried in the autumn.

"Clear Conspiracy" Charged

In announcing it would support Allen in the investigation, which the department of justice already had undertaken, R. N. Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties union, said:

"Mr. Allen has presented to us evidence which, on its face, makes out a clear conspiracy to force the sale of his paper to his political opponents. We believe that his rights under federal law have been violated.

"We have advised him to proceed in the federal courts with suits for damages, and we have urged upon the department of justice consideration of criminal charges under the civil rights statute."

At the department of justice it was learned that an investigation, ordered in the belief Allen had been wronged, is nearing completion.

Suits Seek $400,000

The 40 libel suits against the newspaper and Allen are for $10,000 each, or a total of $400,000. The conviction, obtained in a Laredo court, was partially upset in the Court of Appeals and set for retrial after October. The civil suits have been set for hearing Oct. 1. Two other criminal libel actions also are pending.

"While the grand jury was deliberating the indictment in the criminal case," according to a statement made by Allen, which is in the hands of the department of justice, "a representative of the Rotarians and the politicians called at the office of the Laredo Times and said that if the Rotary club and representatives of the political machine could take over complete control of the Times, the indictments would be stopped."

Allen said the civil suits were filed in a conspiracy between citizens and politicians to keep on filing suits until the Times goes broke defending the actions or paying damages.

Inquiry Pressed by Texan

The department of justice investigation, which was begun under former Atty. Gen. Biddle, is being pressed under Atty. Gen. Clark, who is a Texan. The investigation is being carried on under the direction of Victor Rotnem, assistant attorney general.

The Laredo Times has a circulation of 15,000, of which 3,500 copies are sold in Mexico. Allen has increased the circulation from 4,000 in 1934 and for years has been active on both sides of the border in promoting American-Mexican relations.

Allen has been decorated by the Mexican government with the military order of merit and the Aztec eagle. He was the first civilian to receive the military medal.

Laredo, which is on the border, has a population of more than 40,000, with approximately 90 per cent of it Mexican, according to Allen.

65,000 Needed

An appeal for railroad workers in 25 midwestern and western states is being made at a model railroad exhibit in Madison st. east of State st., where a model of 25 passenger and freight trains, with switches, tunnels, and railroad equipment, is on display. Approximately 65,000 workers are needed for railroads in the area.

RAIL AND BUS STRIKE WAVE HITS BRITAIN

LONDON, Aug. 5 (AP)—Sporadic railway and bus strikes harassed many sections of Britain today and available transport was taxed by the greatest volume of holiday traffic in six years.

Most of the rail work stoppages started as "Sunday only" walkouts, but 600 workers in Liverpool, focal point of the current wave of strikes, voted to stay off the job tomorrow when the peak volume of August bank holiday return travel is expected. Appeals of union leaders were ignored by the strikers.

Union representatives of 500,000 British railway men are scheduled to resume negotiations with employers Tuesday on labor demands for a 40 hour week, an $18 minimum weekly wage, and two weeks paid vacation annually. Bus service in one London suburb was halted by strikers.

CONGRESS BODY INSPECTS REIMS ASSEMBLY AREA

PARIS, Aug. 5 (AP)—A 10 man congressional committee headed by Rep. Dondero [R., Mich.] visited troop camps in the Reims assembly area today, inspecting army redeployment.

The committee talked with Maj. Gen. Royal Lord, commander of the Reims area, visited former SHAEF in the little red school where the German surrender was signed, and saw troops of the 13th airborne and 45th infantry divisions awaiting shipment from Le Havre to the United States.

Other members of the committee are Representatives Weiss [D., Pa.], Feighan [D., O.], Hubert [D., O.], Caranahan [D., Mo.], Cheif [D., Ky.], Horan [R., Wash.], Merrow [R., N. H.], Ramey [R., O.], and Fulton [R., Pa.].

CANADA CALLS PARLEY TO MAP POST-WAR PLANS

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 5 (AP)—The dominion government will lay down a blueprint for post-war Canada tomorrow at the opening of a conference with the governments of the country's nine provinces.

Underlying the parley is the question of provincial autonomy, similar to the state's rights in the United States. Each province, represented by its premier and constitutional and taxation experts, will guard its own rights as the federal government seeks acceptance of an overall program for post-war prosperity.

Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King said the conference will appraise Canada's post-war problems and needs and consider appropriate governmental policy and action. The program includes discussion of plans for maintenance of full employment and a high national income thru encouragement of private industry and thru public improvements, and for promotion of public welfare and social security.

BIG 3'S SILENCE ON STRAIT EASES TURKISH FEARS

LONDON, Aug. 5 (AP)—Future control of the Dardanelles straits stood out today among the problems left unsettled at Potsdam, but in Turkey the delay caused surprise rather than alarm.

Dispatches from Ankara said the silence of the Potsdam declaration on the straits question was viewed in many Turkish quarters as no indication, however, that Russia's demand for revision of present Turkish controls had been ignored.

General Turkish opinion, dispatches reported, seemed to be that Potsdam had proved that the Big Three had encountered no serious difficulties or diversions of any kind, and that therefore the conference was a solid basis for peace.

Turkish Fears Calmed

This attitude apparently calmed Turkish fears before the Potsdam meeting that serious misunderstandings might arise between the major powers in which the straits control might become ensnarled.

Russia has asked for revision of the 1936 Montreux treaty giving Turkey control of the Dardanelles, to grant the soviet union freer passage between the Black sea and the Mediterranean.

Dispatches from Greece and Italy disclosed political stirrings of various kinds in the wake of the Potsdam conference.

Reaction in Greece

Field Marshal Alexander told British troops occupying the Venezia-Giulia region on the Yugoslav-Italian border which Tito would like to include in Yugoslavia, that "History is being written here today—we are here as trustees and I know the British soldier is the best ambassador of his country."

In Athens Regent Archbishop Damaskinos continued conferences with leaders of all political parties to get their views on a statement by Liberal Party Leader Sophoulis urging formation of a representative government. No government change was planned immediately, however.

CHETNIKS FREED WITH THOUSANDS BY TITO'S LAW

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Aug. 5 [Reuters]—Thousands of Yugoslavs detained on collaboration and kindred charges, including many already sentenced to imprisonment or forced labor, were freed today when, on recommendation of Prime Minister Marshal Tito, the provisional parliament passed an amnesty law.

The law affects all who served in various forces—Chetniks [troops raised by Gen. Dragomir Mikhailovitch], the forces of Gen. Milutin Neditch, Serbian Quisling prime minister, the Croat and Slovene "home guards," and also citizens who to some degree collaborated during the occupation. Those who worked for the axis in cultural and artistic fields and deserters from the Yugoslav army were also covered.

Exceptions to amnesty are the Ustachi [Croat terrorists], all whom served under Ljotich, Serbian nazi guerilla chief, member of the "Kulturbund" and Gestapo and other fascist police organizations, and definite war criminals.

EGYPT MAY ASK REVISION OF HER BRITISH TIES

Removal of Troops Likely Goal

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 5 [Reuters]—Nokrashy Pasha, Egypt's prime minister, is expected to demand revision of the Anglo-Egyptian treaty of 1936 in a speech to the senate tomorrow night.

He is likely to ask for:

1. Full independence for Egypt and removal of British troops.
2. Revision of the status of the Sudan.

The draft of the speech has been approved by the Egyptian cabinet.

Wafdist Asks Change

Nahas Pasha, leader of the Wafdist [Nationalist] party and prime minister from 1942 to 1944, has already demanded revision of the treaty in a note handed to the British ambassador in Cairo. The treaty is not due to expire until 1956.

Nahas Pasha stated that it was the good will of the Egyptian people and not the presence of a limited number of British troops which was vital for Britain when war broke out.

Britons long resident in Egypt believe that the war has proved that Egypt is essential to British communications and that any revision of the treaty may not be altogether one sided. Britain, too, they believe, may have demands to make.

Ask "Sudan for Egypt"

Egyptians base their demand for a change in the status of the Sudan, at present under joint Anglo-Egyptian control, on Egypt's conquest of the country under Mohammed Ali, its subsequent evacuation at the request of the British and Egypt's payment of a large part of the expenses for its reconquest.

They ask for "Sudan for Egypt," a cry often raised at demonstrations.

Behind the demand is a deepfelt fear for "Egypt's life blood"—the waters of the Nile. Egyptians fear that water may be diverted for the irrigation of the Sudan.

PETAIN DEFENSE TO BE RESUMED AT TRIAL TODAY

PARIS, Aug. 5 (AP)—The treason trial of Marshal Petain enters its third week tomorrow afternoon in the palace of justice with the defense reopening the case for the aged Vichy chief after a two day interruption for the testimony of Pierre Laval.

Some 35 defense witnesses remain to be called. They include Gen. Alphonse Juin, one time commander of French forces in North Africa, and Cardinal Lionard. But the defense lawyers maintain that their "key witnesses" will be documents, not people. Petain has letters and telegrams that he kept secret even from Laval, the defense has stated.

The defense already has brought about a minor alteration in the charges against Petain. Prosecutor Andre Mornet has ceased insisting on premeditation in the accusation that Petain "plotted against the safety of the state."

BERLIN CLEANUP AWAITS WORD ON CITY'S FATE

Capital May Be Reduced to Million People

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Aug. 5—The fate of the capital of Germany hangs in the balance today as the control sections of the United States, French, British, and Russian armies await directives from the "topmost levels" clarifying the meaning of the Big Three bulletin which declared the "reich government will be decentralized."

If the German administrative government is permanently shorn of the supreme authority it possessed formerly and the various provinces are given certain autonomy as the bulletin announced, and if the Big Three decision to deindustrialize Germany is carried out, it is problematical whether Berlin ever again will be permitted to become the largest city on the European continent with nearly 4,000,000 inhabitants.

That is one reason why the colossal job of cleaning up the debris from bombs and shells and preparing for repairs to the semi-shattered buildings to house the present 3,500,000 populace before the inclement winter weather, has not yet started.

May Remove Peoples

If Washington, London, and Moscow agree there is no valid reason why Berlin should emerge from its ruins as the principal city on the continent, then the military governments and the control commissions will immediately start the process of removing elements of the population and dispersing them in other areas of the reich and sending most of the displaced persons back to farms.

In a decentralized, deindustrialized, demilitarized Germany, Berlin may not be able to support normally a population greater than a million, competent authorities here believe.

It is pointed out that Berlin rose to preeminence after the Franco-Prussian war in 1870 when Bismarck created the German empire and made the city headquarters of the Prussian state and the empire. Simultaneously, the steel and chemical age blossomed. Development of the Ruhr and Rhineland industries in turn begot the German munitions works, Krupp armor plate and artillery were sold to the world's navies and armies.

Rail and Canal Center

All giant German industries established Berlin factories and maintained accounting and bookkeeping departments in the capital, which with government functionaries, it is estimated, gave employment to 20 per cent of the populace.

Bismarck and Von Moltke made Berlin the railway and canal center of the nation, and Hitler added highways for identical reasons—strategic military use for a possible war on any front, which helped divert the population and business to the city.

Since every employed person in the community requires another person for services, according to statistics, the above factors account for nearly half the pre-war population.

As housing, food, clothing, and other normal requirements will show shortages in the next few years, it is believed another appreciable percentage of the populace will welcome the opportunity to settle elsewhere where the vital necessities of life are easier to obtain.

Lastly there is the factor the British and Americans are reluctant to discuss but which exists nevertheless—the anxiety of all Berliners to get as far away as possible from the Red army zone of occupation.

Disputed Islets

Minquiers Reef, whose possession is claimed by both Britain and France.

FRENCH WIN TILT IN 600 YR. 'WAR' WITH ENGLAND

Place Flag on Rocky Islets in Channel

BY JAMES SLOAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Aug. 5—The French tonight appeared to have won the latest round in a 600 years' "war" with Britain over possession of Minquiers Reef, a chain of rocky, uninhabited islets between the British Channel Islands and the French coast.

Ever since a dispute arose over interpretation of the treaty ending the Hundred Years' war, Britain's claim to the virtually useless islets has been kept alive by an annual ceremony in which the harbor master of the Island of Jersey hoists the Union Jack over them.

Plans Annexation

In June, 1931, Marin Marie, French yachtsman and seascape painter, planned to lead a group of Norman fishermen to annex Maitresses Isle, the largest of the group. Before Marie could bring his plan to fruition, the war intervened. Two months ago, after being barred during the Nazis' occupation of the Channel Islands, the Union Jack again was hoisted on Maitresse. Today, when a Jersey tugboat went to Minquiers to lay moorings for fishing boats, the captain discovered a French flag flying from a mast, at the base of which was inscribed "August 2, 1945."

The Union Jack, hoisted two months ago when the British military authorities formally retook possession of the islets, also was still flying.

Many Ships Wrecked

The Plateau des Minquiers, as the group is called by the French, situated nine miles south of Jersey Island, and 13 miles from the nearest French land, is a tangled mass of reefs 16 miles long and eight miles wide. It is extremely dangerous to shipping, and there have been many wrecks. Maitresse Islet is 200 yards long and 100 yards wide. Jersey fishermen have stone huts on the islet, and they work in and around the reef during eight months of the year. Large quantities of lobsters are caught for the London market.

Report Brazilian Steamer Sinks with 57 Lives Lost

BOGOTA, Colombia, Aug. 5 (AP)—The newspaper El Siglo said today that 57 persons lost their lives when the Brazilian steamer Ayudante sank after a collision on the Amazon river, 200 miles downstream from the Colombian river port of Leticia. Official sources here said they had no confirmation, adding that the site of the reported accident was in Brazilian territory.

GIs PITCH COTS IN GERMANY'S BIG HOLLYWOOD

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NEU BABELSBERG, BERLIN, Germany, Aug. 5—The reich's Hollywood, situated here beside the Wannsee, where the state department contingent of the American delegation to the Big Three conference resided, is now divided among the three armies of occupation. The Russians, British, and Americans hold different sections of the vast Ufa studio where most of the German films were made.

Movie sets on Hollywood lots look ghastly and nightmarish with segments of the facades of buildings without roofs because the camera never shoots that high. The Ufa standing sets, however, consisting of buildings constructed merely of false fronts with nothing behind them, appear natural in this great city of bomb and shell shattered edifices whose stark walls mask only rubble at the rear.

GIs Use Dressing Rooms

The former Ufa sound stages now house army trucks and quartermaster stores. The countless little dressing rooms for the artists now house two GIs each in army cots. The stars' dressing rooms are quarters for officers, and the names of Lilian Hervey, Marlene Dietrich, and Peter Lorre are to be seen on rusted door plates in the wing reserved for celebrities.

The Russians' section of the studio is separated from the rest by barbed wire, with armed sentinels on guard, but the British and Americans share the remainder of the lot without any barriers. Homesick GIs tinker with the movie stunt plane to get the motor running, and homesick tommies fiddle with film executives' abandoned automobiles to get them started.

The Russians grabbed all the technical equipment from the plant before the allies arrived.

Red Club in Executives' Room

A British army paymaster sits in the cashier's cage where Ufa formerly paid their extras, and Russian officers have a club in the executives' room where producers and directors once held their conferences and smoked big cigars.

There's a prophylactic station now where chorus girls for musicales formerly tried on their costumes, and the biggest projection room is used as a movie theater by the Yanks.

France Promised Coal; Sees Winter Battle Won

LONDON, Aug. 5 (AP)—The Paris radio quoted Finance Minister Rene Pleven as saying today that France had "now won the battle of winter." Pleven said the United States would deliver to France 400,000 tons of coal monthly, and "Germany must deliver us 10,000,000 tons," the broadcast added.

GERMAN POLL SHOWS 50 PCT. CLING TO HITLER

A. M. G. Reports on Secret Survey

STUTTGART, Germany Aug. 5 (AP)—Sgt. Alexander Enright, a 36-year-old Czech who is in the investigation branch of the American military government, said today that a poll taken by a German agent for the A.M.G. showed that at least 50 per cent of the German people still took Hitler's part.

"If they find fault with him, it is only in the presence of others in order not to be denounced," the agent reported. Enright was an exporter in Czechoslovakia before fleeing to join the American army in Elizabeth, N. J. He said a German who is coöperating with the American military government concealed his identity, and asked Germans in casual conversation in one region how they viewed things under the Americans.

His Report to A.M.G.

This is his report to the A.M.G., Erright said:

A business man: "On the whole things are satisfactory. We can work much better with the Americans than with the French [who formerly ocupied Stuttgart]. One thing I fear is that war with Russia is inevitable."

A shoemaker: "The Americans are not soldiers." Our soldiers are unsurpassed, and one day they will march again. Our hands are tied now and we can't do anything, but we want a free Germany again."

A farmer: "I have not suffered much from the war. I feel 'all right.' We have much more freedom than before."

A youth of 17: "The Americans are good sports, and have good arms. I should like to be a soldier with them."

She Likes Americans

A girl, 20: "I like the Americans because they are exactly like our men. You can get along with them and they are decent, altho they have some bad characters among them as we have among our own men."

A factory worker: "I don't care who governs here—Nazis, French, Americans—we are the dupes in any case. My hope is that bolshevism will come to us, too. Then at least we will do well."

A furrier: "The Americans are harmless people who haven't much interest in us and who came to Germany just for adventure's sake. I cannot stand them."

A doctor: "In the beginning of the occupation by Americans I had great hopes that everything would be better, but nothing has been done. They seized the last property we had saved. They're no better than the Nazis."

POLES ALREADY RULE STETTIN, PLAN TO REBUILD

Great Baltic Port Vital in Warsaw's Future

STETTIN, Poland, Aug. 5 (AP)—The red and white flag of Poland waved triumphantly today over this city—once Germany's greatest seaport on the Baltic.

Port of Stettin

Since June 5—on Russian Marshal George Zhukov's order—a Polish administration has been organized for the 900 year old city on the west bank of the Oder.

Currently Polish rule extends for a radius of eight miles from the center of Szczecina, as the Poles call Stettin. Polish transport experts, however, have instructions to take over by Aug. 15 the control of a rail network radiating approximately 19 miles from the city's center.

Polish administrators expect to move in where the railroad men go. In that case Polish administered territory also would reach about 19 miles west of the lower Oder, close to the outskirts of Pasewalk and embracing scores of lesser towns and villages in the thickly populated Pomeranian countryside.

Feel They're Back to Stay

Poles who are running Stettin are not yet sure how much more land west of the Oder will definitely be committed to their control. But at least they are convinced they have come back to Stettin itself to stay and they plan to rebuild it as Poland's most important port for overseas commerce.

Since the Russians captured Stettin April 27 it has twice been under Polish rule.

A Poznan engineer, a six year victim of German persecution, came in the day after the soviet forces. Supplied with full powers by Col. Borowicz, Polish governor of western Pomerania, he started setting up a municipal administration.

The engineer, Peter Zaremba, found 6,000 Germans still hiding in the blazing city. For three weeks fanatical remnants of an SS. [elite guard] regiment continued to snipe, set fires and lay booby traps, until at last they were destroyed.

Zaremba and his staff moved out of the port May 19 and the city came under direct soviet military control. June 3 Zaremba again received permission to organize for a second time a Polish municipality.

Port Is Vital

Because both Gdynia and Gdansk [Danzig] suffered crippling damage while Stettin's docks survived in fairly good shape, Stettin is regarded as of paramount importance in Poland's reconstruction program.

Besides west Pomerania, Poland has set up the following administrations for former German territories:

Mazuria province with the temporary capital at Olsztyn [Allenstein]. The province embraces the southern part of East Prussia not taken by Russia.

A square-shaped area extending west from the old Polish frontier to Frankfurt on the Oder, to be placed directly under the governor of Poznan province.

Lower Silesia province with the capital at Wroclaw [Breslau].

Middle Silesia with Opole [Oppeln] the capital.

The remainder of old German Upper Silesia has been incorporated in the Polish Silesian province of Slask Dabrowski. Its capital is Katowice [Katowitz].

Bombed German Refinery Rebuilt, Resumes Output

LONDON, Aug. 5 (AP)—The Hamburg radio said today that the bombed out Schleura oil refinery near Hanover had resumed production after being rebuilt. Fuel from the refinery, one of Germany's largest, was said to be going to 25 power stations and other former coal consuming industries.

BRITISH SAILORS PROTEST SHORE OVERCROWDING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Aug. 5—Hundreds of British sailors are volunteering for active service to escape the overcrowded naval barracks at Portsmouth, Devonport, and Chatham, the Sunday Express reported today after investigating a naval officer's charge that Britain is 100 years behind America in shore accommodations for seamen.

The Express said the barracks built at Chatham 40 years ago for 10,000 men are utterly inadequate to house the 27,000 quartered there while awaiting demobilization. The Express reporter quoted a sailor as saying "any man daring to complain is at once put on the overseas draft, but many men are begging to be sent abroad. Anywhere, any ship, would be better than being herded like cattle at Chatham."

The food is said to be insufficient and so shockingly prepared that vast amounts are hauled away daily to feed pigs, while the men prefer to spend their own money to eat in cafes. The crowding of 400 men into a barracks block designed to hold 100 is said to be typical of Chatham.

600 Tons of Coal Reach Vienna from Styria

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 5 [Reuters]—The first train from the British occupied zone of Styria, southeastern Austria, arrived in Vienna today with 600 tons of coal. Distribution will be in soviet hands, the coal being used for essential requirements, particularly in keeping the bakeries going. A request for coal was made by the Russians at an emergency meeting.

ZIONISTS TOLD OF ANTI-SEMITIC ACTS IN POLAND

LONDON, Aug. 5 (AP)—Polish delegates told the World Zionist conference today that violent anti-Semitism continues in Poland, with "reactionary [anti-Semitic] forces stronger now than before Hitler."

"These elements aided the Germans in destroying nearly 3,500,000 Polish Jews and they are still doing their murderous work, but the Warsaw unity government, in cooperation with the Russians, is acting strongly to annihilate these forces," one delegate reported.

Miss Haya Grossman, at 26 a veteran underground fighter and survivor of the 1943 battle of the Bialystok ghetto, asserted at least 500 Jews had been "murdered by reactionary bands" since Poland's liberation. Some of these groups were operating in the countryside, she said, "fighting also against the Warsaw government and the Russians."

In some regions where such outlaw bands are swooping down on small Jewish communities, the Russians have given the Jews arms to defend themselves, Miss Grossman said.

During the Nazi occupation, the delegates reported, the Germans, with the aid of Polish anti-Semites killed all but 75,000 adults and 5,000 children of pre-war Poland's 3,500,000 Jews. Of the 800 men and women who were key organizers of the Jewish underground resistance, only two survived.

Only survivor in a family of four, Miss Grossman described a futile attempt by 25,000 doomed Jews to break out of the Bialystok ghetto in August, 1943:

Three hundred picked fighters spearheaded the attempt to break thru the German ring surrounding the suburb. They fought the Germans with about 100 small guns and some home-made grenades. Of the 300, only 70 survived and the Germans marched the ghetto's population off to Maidanek and other death camps. Only a few who hid in cellars escaped.

BRITISHER ACCUSED OF LENDING PISTOL TO HITLER'S BUTLER

Albert Kannenberg

MANNHEIM, Germany, Aug. 5 (AP)—A British war photographer, Horace J. Abrahams, was accused today of lending a pistol to Adolf Hitler's butler.

Abrahams was arraigned in an American military government court and held for trial after he asked that a British defense lawyer be obtained for him. He is accused of representing himself as an American army captain and breaking house arrest after the pistol incident.

Prosecution officers said Abrahams left a pistol last May with the butler, Albert Kannenberg, who was captured in May near Berchtesgaden, so the butler could protect himself against intruders. They said the photographer also was accused of posting an "off limits" notice on the butler's house, signing it with the mythical name of an American army captain. Abrahams was accredited to the United States army.

EX-PRIZE FIGHT MANAGER BEGINS ARMY SENTENCE

New York, Aug. 5 (AP)—Joseph Gould, former manager of James J. Braddock, ex-heavyweight boxing champion, today began a one year sentence in the United States disciplinary barracks at Green Haven, N. Y., for conspiring to defraud the government, the second service command announced.

Gould, a former army captain, was convicted last November by a court-martial of unlawfully influencing the award of contracts for the manufacture of more than a million dollars' worth of army equipment.

WARSAW POLISH AIDS BEGIN TO REACH LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Aug. 5—Representatives of the newly recognized Warsaw government of Poland are beginning to arrive here in large numbers, indicating closer collaboration with Britain.

Close on the heels of Dr. Alfred Fiderkiewicz, charge d'affaires, who arrived on Saturday, a Polish military mission is due on Tuesday. Fiderkiewicz is a Peasant party official. He once was imprisoned in a German concentration camp. In a few days three members of the Warsaw regime also are expected here. They are Hilary Minz, minister of trade, commerce, and industry; Stefan Jedrychowski, minister for foreign trade; and Jan Stanczyk, Socialist and trade union leader, now minister of labor and public assistance.

There is speculation that Stanczyk, who attended the Potsdam conference and is an old friend of British Foreign Minister Bevin, may become Polish ambassador to Britain.

RED COURT VOIDS CONVICTION OF PRIEST FROM U. S.

MOSCOW, Aug. 5 [Reuters]—Father Leopold Braun, an American Roman Catholic priest, who was found guilty by the people's court here last month and fined 100 rubles [$50 at pre-war rates] for assault and battery, has appealed successfully against the court's findings.

After hearing Father Braun's deposition, the three appeal court judges, two of whom were women, declared the sentence annulled and the case withdrawn.

Father Braun was charged on July 2 with assaulting a soviet janitor employed by the French embassy in Moscow. A well known figure in the soviet capital where he is pastor of Moscow's only Roman Catholic church, Father Braun is a native of New Bedford, Mass. He has been in Moscow for 12 years.

BRITISH BUILD FAKE WARSHIPS TO FOOL NAZIS

Transformed Freighters Draw Enemy Fire

BY JAMES SLOAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Aug. 5—Britain tonight disclosed how it used a phantom fleet of wooden warships to hoax the Germans for the first two years of the war and to save the real warships from bomber and U-boat attacks.

Soon after the war broke out three merchant ships were camouflaged with elaborate superstructures of plywood and canvas, fitted with dummy wooden guns, and painted to transform them into replicas of two battleships and an aircraft carrier. They were designed as bait for submarines and decoys for nazi reconnaissance planes and bombers when fleet units were away from their big bases at Scapa Flow and the Firth of Forth. They also proved useful in diluting the scale of air attacks on the fleet when it was present at these bases and also in keeping the enemy guessing about the strategic disposition of Britain's capital ships.

Churchill Gave Order

The dummy ships were built on instructions of Winston Churchill when he was first lord of the admiralty.

Two merchantmen of 8,000 tons were transformed into replicas of the 33,500 ton battleships Revenge and Resolution, while the third cargo vessel became the model of the 12,000 ton aircraft carrier Hermes. The ships' holds were filled with thousands of empty barrels to give them greater buoyancy if hit by bombs or torpedoes.

The fake Hermes foiled the Germans so successfully that when they sank her off the Wash they claimed they had bagged the real carrier. Many other alarming rumors were started among German officialdom by the appearance of these mystery ships in ports in Scotland and on the Tyne river and it is believed they were several times responsible for leading the Nazis to think Britain's fleet was at home when actually it was prowling the seas for German raiders.

Old Trick Repeated

A similar use of dummy warships fooled the Germans in World War I., notably off New York in 1915 where they frightened German vessels into remaining in harbor with the result that the armed merchant cruiser Kron Prinz Wilhelm was interned. Later they tricked the Turks off the Dardanelles.

Another British decoy ship fooled the enemy in foreign waters during 1941-'42. Even while the navy base of Devonport was under heavy air attacks the 33 year old battleship Centurion, disarmed under the Washington naval treaty and then being used as a local repair ship, was converted into an imitation of the new battleship Anson. She was given a dummy after funnel, mainmast, main armament, and made a 20,000 mile trip to Bombay.

In June, 1942, she sailed in a Malta convoy that was intercepted by the Italian fleet and was repeatedly bombed, but shot down several attackers. Finally she was sunk as a blockship on D-day off the Normandy coast.

REPORT MOVE IN SPAIN TO GIVE PRINCE THRONE

MADRID, Spain, Aug. 5 (AP)—Informed sources said today Spanish military leaders are organizing with the aim of transferring the Spanish government from Franco to Prince Don Juan, exiled pretender to the Spanish throne.

The sources said the group was inspired by the Big Three's Potsdam denunciation of the Franco regime and had the backing of Spanish monarchists. The organization was described as being in regular communication with Don Juan, who is in Switzerland.

The group will "request" Franco to surrender his power and already has asked his "patriotic participation" in its program, which provides for a national referendum on restoration of the monarchy, the report said. Don Juan has said he would not take the throne without a referendum.

Oregon's Blaze Bursts Bounds in 2 Directions

Portland, Ore., Aug. 5 (AP)—Fire crews struggled today to suppress new outbursts in the Tillamook forest fire as the mercury shot up to 98 degrees on the hottest day this year.

Flames licked only a mile from the Cook creek outlet on the Nehalem river. Rich timberland lies across the stream.

Another flareup on the fire's southwest front leaped across fire trails and sent fighters into retreat for the second day.

An inquest was set for 10 a. m. today into the death of George McDaniels, 25, of 6243 Greenwood av., who was shot early yesterday in the Zebra lounge, 1346 E. 63d st., by the owner, Jack Simon, 45, of 6319 Kenwood av.

Jack Simon

Simon told Woodlawn police that McDaniels came to the lounge at 5 a. m. and demanded a drink. Simon called to his wife, Florence, to phone for police, he said, and at that McDaniels reached toward his pocket and shouted, "Get her out of that booth."

Simon got his own revolver from beneath the bar and fired three shots. Police held Simon, his brother, Mitchell of 6125 Kenwood av., and Ralph Neal, 3104 Wabash av., the porter, for the inquest, which will be held at 1401 E. 67th st.

MOTHER, FRIEND FACE COURT IN CHILD SEIZURE

Pvt. Walter Bochenek, 28, who is on furlough from Harmon General hospital in Longview, Tex., hopes to find out where his baby daughter, Sandra, 2, is, when his wife, Adele, and a male friend of hers face assault charges today in Shakespeare av. police court.

Complaints against Mrs. Bochenek and the friend, Louis Bauer, 27, of 7840 Kingston av., were signed yesterday by Bochenek's mother, Mrs. Anna Bochenek, 5924 Wrightwood av., who identified Bauer as the man who accompanied Adele when she took Sandra from her mother-in-law Saturday afternoon.

Bauer was arrested after Pvt. Bochenek traced the license number of the car in which he had seen his wife. Bauer, a management engineer, admitted lending the younger Mrs. Bochenek his car, but said she was a friend of the family, which his wife, Hope, corroborated.

EXPECT BYRNES TO REORGANIZE HIS DEPARTMENT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5 (AP)—The second reorganization of the state department in less than a year is expected to get under way soon after Secretary Byrnes' return from Potsdam early this week.

An elaborate plan for overhauling is being prepared under the direction of Budget Director Smith for submission to Byrnes immediately upon his return. Byrnes, appointed to the cabinet shortly before his departure with President Truman for the Big Three meeting, has spent only two days at his new post.

As a result, top officials—notably Acting Secretary Grew and Assistant Secretaries Rockefeller and MacLeish—are uncertain of their futures. Speculation is that Byrnes will allow Grew to retire.

Two Germans Executed for Possession of Arms

LONDON, Aug. 5 [Reuters]—Two Germans have been executed in the prison of Wolfenbuettel, Brunswick, for the unlawful possession of arms, the allied press service for German papers reported today. They were Edmund Horlander, a seaman, and Heinrich Wuerbecke, sentenced at Oldenburg on July 5.

THAT WATCH ON RHINE HAS NEW FACE: A RED ONE

BY E. R. NODERER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Aug. 5—Jewelers report a heavy demand for cheap watches, which British and American service men are selling to Russian soldiers in Berlin at prices ranging up to more than $1,000. A plane recently arrived in Britain from Berlin with 15 passengers, and every one was minus his watch but richer by hundreds of dollars.

It works like this, according to those recently back from Germany:

The Russian army has been holding back most of the Red soldiers' pay during the war, but has now paid them off in German occupation marks.

Forced to Buy Goods

At the same time, orders have been given that no Russian soldier may take back to the soviet more than 150 marks, which have the present value of $15. The idea is to force the men to buy all the German goods they can and take them back with them.

Russia has plenty of occupation marks and can continue printing them as long as the paper holds out, but has not much in the way of consumer goods. The thing the Red soldiers want most of all is a wrist watch, which most had never seen until they began occupying other countries. The first thing the Russians stole from allied prisoners was their watches, according to reports from former prisoners returned here.

Lively Black Market

In the black market around the Brandenburg gate, the Russians, Joes, and Tommies do a lively business. The Russians pay in occupation marks, but these can be converted into dollars or pounds at army finance offices.

One soldier told of selling an American child's $2 watch for $1,000. Another said he sold his $40 watch to a pal for $650. The pal said he could resell it to the Reds at a neat profit. To the Russian, who must get rid of his cash, price is no object. One factor that may slow down this business is that watches are scarce in London and those leaving for Berlin have a hard time finding any. However, a WAC was seen leaving the other day with four on one wrist.

BIG NATIONAL GUARD MAY BE TRUMAN GOAL

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5 (AP)—President Truman may propose an enlarged and modernized national guard as an alternative to peace time military conscription, it was reported today.

The President was said to be studying the whole question of post-war military needs, especially in the light of this country's planned participation in the allied nations organization.

Friends in congress believe the President is much more likely to propose an expanded guard — a branch of the service in which he was an officer in World War I. — than to support the peace time draft urged by War Secretary Stimson, Gen. Marshall, Adm. King, and others.

PRESS OF BERLIN ADMITS GUILT OF GERMAN PEOPLE

BERLIN, Aug. 5 (AP)—The Berlin press, which operates under soviet censorship, discussed the Potsdam conference in detail today.

Wilhelm Pieck, communist leader, writing in the party's Deutsche Volkszeitung, said "The heads of the three great powers showed a magnanimity which cannot be evaluated too highly in view of the inhumane conduct of warfare and the great guilt of the German people."

Taegliche Rundschau, organ of soviet military authorities, said the declaration served notice that the Germans "cannot escape responsibility for the crimes of the clique whose power they supported more than 12 years." The Berliner Zeitung, official organ of the Berlin magistrate, stressed the unity of the Big Three powers and said Germany now is "not even worth having a conflict about among the Big Three."

Allies Remove Controls on Ships of Finland

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 5 (AP)—Dispatches from Helsinki, Finland, said that the allied control commission for Finland announced today removal of all restrictions on movements of Finnish naval and merchant vessels, and added that Finnish military aircraft may fly again within the borders of the country. Air fields at Kotka and Turku, taken over by the Russians during the war with Germany, were returned to the Finnish military.

Is there a MAGICIAN in the house?

Too much twisting of the telephone cord may injure the wire inside the cord and require replacement.

Ordinarily, your telephone service man would cheerfully say: "I'll give you a new cord." Today he has to find ingenious new ways to make present equipment do.

With telephone facilities and materials still urgently needed for war uses, there continues to be a shortage here in the Illinois Bell area. It would take a magician to produce the equipment we'd like to have available for you.

So we list a few simple suggestions. If you'll follow them, we'll appreciate your thoughtfulness.

- Please untwist cord whenever it gets kinky.
- Avoid placing telephone near desk corner where cord might catch on drawer knob or be pinched in drawer.
- Cover telephone and cord with cloth when painting or papering your home or office.
- Don't leave instrument near open window.

TRUMAN SINGS WITH CREW AT SHIP'S SERVICES

Simple Hymn of Faith Sets Sabbath Tone

ABOARD U. S. S. AUGUSTA WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN, Aug. 5 (AP)—A simple hymn of faith, in which the voice of President Truman joined today with those of fighting sailors, set the pitch for observance of the sabbath aboard the cruiser Augusta, carrying the chief executive home from the Big Three meeting.

The President laid aside affairs of state to meet with officers and members of the crew in the forward mess hall below the well deck in general Protestant services.

The President sang with the others these symbolic lines:

"Faith of our fathers, we will strive
"To win all nations unto Thee;
"And through the truth that comes from God
"Mankind shall then indeed be free."

Young Chaplain Leads

The young chaplain, Kenneth Perkins of Savona, N. Y., led in prayers for the President, the country and the people who serve it, and prayed for divine guidance into the ways of peace "for all the nations and the communities of the world."

He based his sermon on the 19th chapter of St. Luke, beginning with the 41st verse.

The chaplain, mentioning that some of his congregation have just returned from the scenes of destruction in Europe, spoke of what happens when people "strive for world domination" and of the inevitable outlook for Japan.

The President, attired in a light brown summer suit, was accompanied to the services by Secretary of State Byrnes; Capt. James H. Foskett, skipper of the Augusta; Judge Samuel Rosenman, special White House counsel; Benjamin Cohen, special assistant to Byrnes; Capt. James K. Vardaman, and Brig. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, naval and military aides; H. Freeman Matthews, director of the state department's office of European affairs, and newspaper men assigned to the ship.

Cruiser Makes 26 Knots

The Augusta, making record time, moved along at a 26 knot clip most of the time today. It will dock at an eastern port early in the week and the President will proceed to Washington by train.

His report on the protocol signed at Berlin—where he said no secret agreements were made with Prime Minister Attlee and Marshal Stalin—is being whipped into shape for a nation-wide radio address shortly after his return.

The President was chided today by members of his party for "oversleeping," when he remained in bed until nearly 7 a. m. Press Secretary Charles G. Ross boasted it was the first time he ever arrived at the breakfast table in advance of the chief executive, who usually arises about 5:30 a. m.

2D TANK DIVISION IN BERLIN TAKES HOMEWARD STEP

Moves from Capital to Frankfort

BY HENRY WALES
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

BERLIN, Aug. 5—The 2d armored division held its last religious services in the chapel near the press camp this morning before moving to a new area near Frankfort this week.

The first battalion of the 82d air borne division arrived today to replace the second, which is scheduled to sail for the United States in December.

The spic and span soldiers, shaved and in clean uniforms, with their distinctive shoulder patches, looked mighty different from the time they held services outside Rheydt, Germany, just prior to the Rhine crossing. Then the steel helmeted troopers were grimy, muddy, and unshorn, their insignia hidden by brassards so the Germans would not know of the presence of these elite troops, and every man carried a carbine or an automatic rifle.

Iowa Chaplain Preaches

The following Sunday, at Lippstadt, no services were held because the 2d armored was fighting desperately while organizing contact with the 3d armored division, which sealed off the entire Ruhr and trapped nearly a million Germans in that pocket.

Today Chaplain Capt. William Overhulser, Methodist preacher of Woodward, Ia., preached the farewell sermon in the Berlin area. In the rear of the chapel many of the German congregation remained after their service to participate in the American rites. The church was decorated with flowers from Grunewald near-by.

Sing "Rock of Ages"

The Yanks sang "Rock of Ages" as the organist, Dan Wood, Painesville, O., played.

Among the Chicagolanders attending the services were Dale Anderson, Howard Lake, Minn.; D. Holmes, Manilla, Ia.; Robert Robineault, Denison, Ia.; Paul Haveck, 5236 Lowe av., Chicago; Ralph Johnson, Pecatonica, Ill.; Mark Camp, 112 E. 6th st., Streator, Ill.; Duane Bragg, Sullivan, Ill.; George Masselink, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Vere Devault, Indianapolis, Ind.

EVERY PLANE IN NAVAL UNIT HIT; NO PILOTS LOST

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5 (AP)—Every plane in navy composite squadron 91 was pierced by flak in 68 days at Okinawa, without the loss of a single pilot or aircrewman.

This was reported by the navy today in disclosing that the men of the squadron are now home for leave and re-assignment. They attributed their record to good luck, sturdiness of their Wildcat and Avenger planes, and the excellence of their pilot training.

Their work at Okinawa was pinpointing fire and bombs on pill boxes, anti-aircraft positions, artillery, blockhouses, and troop concentrations. Sometimes their support of the infantry was so close they dropped bombs only 200 yards ahead.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Aug. 6—First Draft of Constitution

One hundred and fifty-eight years ago today, John Rutledge of South Carolina, chairman of the Constitutional convention's committee of detail, presented to the convention at Philadelphia a first draft of the document which Gladstone was later to describe as "the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man."

The constitution of Aug. 6, 1787, was not the Constitution as we know it today. The delegates who had perspired since May 25 in working out compromises and devising safeguards were to continue their labors until Sept. 17 and to effect many revisions in the document, but already in this initial draft there were apparent some of the phraseology and some of the wisdom which were to characterize the finished product.

The term "congress" took the place of "legislature of the United States," the phrase used earlier by the convention. The "first branch" [of congress] became the "house of representatives" and the "second branch" "the senate."

The draft showed a tendency to limit the powers of congress by carefully specifying them.

The delegates well knew the dangers of an almost impotent general government [for they then had such a one under the articles of confederation] but they were careful not to build one so strong that state rights would be erased. The draft explicitly prohibited certain powers to congress—among them that of granting titles of nobility.

Rutledge's report was mindful as well of the dangers inherent in too much state power. The states were forbidden, among other things, to establish duties on imports and to coin money.

SPANISH ENVOY AVOIDS SCENE ON ARRIVAL IN U. S.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 5 (AP)—A liner which brought Manuel Aznar, new Spanish minister to the United States, docked today but the diplomat did not disembark here.

Spanish consulate officials said the minister left the ship, the Marques de Comillas, at Marcus Hook, Pa., and proceeded to his country's embassy in Washington.

More than 100 persons, described by police as members or sympathizers of the American Committee for Spanish Freedom, gathered at the pier. Officers told them a demonstration would not be permitted.

DEFENDERS WIPE OUT BEACH HEAD IN KENOSHA 'WAR'

2 State Guard Units Fight Sham Battle

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 5 [Special]—A beach head established on the shore of Lake Michigan in the swamps and woodlands south of this city was liquidated after six hours of bloody fighting last night, with all personnel of the invading force "killed or captured."

This was the verdict of umpires in a full dress sham battle fought by two companies of the Wisconsin state guard. Airplanes flew overhead dropping phosphorous bombs during the battle and billowing smoke screens shrouded the battlefield.

Magnesium flares and tear gas were used by troops of the contesting forces, and several thousand rounds of blank small arms and machine gun ammunition were fired.

Spectators Jam Roads

Thousands of spectators, most of them in automobiles, jammed all highways in the vicinity.

The invaders were 125 members of company D, Kenosha, of the 1st battalion of the state guard's 3d infantry regiment, under the command of 1st Lt. Howard Coates, executive officer of the company.

The problem of liquidating the beach head was assigned to company A, Racine, of the same battalion, under command of Capt. Kenneth Sarles. The Racine troops moved into Kenosha in midafternoon and established headquarters in the Kenosha armory. Planes participating in the attack were army trainers from the Kenosha and Racine airports.

Capt. Sarles led his men thru the woods and swamps to the sand dunes surrounding the beach head, where he formed skirmish lines and attacked, following artillery bombardment. Several hundred pounds of dynamite were exploded to simulate artillery shelling.

Two Really Missing

The invaders sought unsuccessfully to escape under cover of smoke screens. Smoke of various colors was used for signaling purposes.

When a count of noses was made at the Kenosha armory after the battle, it was found that two members of company A were missing. The troops returned to the battleground and after an hour of searching located the missing soldiers, who had lost their way in the swamps. No actual casualties were reported among either participants or spectators.

Lt. Col. Val Dittmann, commander of the 1st battalion, and Capt. Frank Harvell of the battalion staff, were umpires. Observers included Maj. John Svoboda, executive officer of the 1st battalion of the 1st infantry, Milwaukee; Capt. Charles Donahue of Co. A, 1st infantry, Milwaukee, and Maj. R. F. McGuire, in charge of chemical warfare for the state guard.

The sham battle was arranged by the guard companies as a substitute for the annual guard encampment, funds for which were vetoed this year by Gov. Goodland. The Kenosha Manufacturers' association paid for the ammunition and other munitions used in the battle.

PRETTY CHICAGO SINGER DEFEATS WAR, ILLNESS

STUTTGART, Germany, Aug. 5 (AP)—Virginia Mott, pretty Chicago girl whose enthusiasm to become a great singer could not be dampened by tragedy, illness, and war, today is appearing at the famous old Stuttgart Opera house and dreaming of the day she can make her debut in the United States.

Hard luck brought together Virginia and an elderly Viennese singer, Maria Ranzou, and together they survived the war and beat off illness.

Virginia, former Oberlin [O.] college student, first came to Europe to study singing in 1937, following the death of her parents.

She returned to Chicago for a visit but in 1939 came back to continue her studies. A short time later she found that cataracts in both eyes were causing her to go blind.

Meets Singer in Hospital

War broke out while she was in a Vienna hospital. In the hospital she met Maria Ranzou who took an interest in Virginia's voice. The 63 year old former singer stood by her side thru five major operations and cared for her during the year that the Chicago girl went completely blind.

Virginia and her benefactor were in Vienna during some of the heaviest air raids. Later they moved to a mountain hideout near Innsbruck, where Virginia had once appeared in the city's little opera house.

"Living was difficult in those years," said Virginia.

Work as Interpreters

The Chicago girl said the Germans did not bother her for a time, tho she had to report regularly to the police. When she became well enough and they threatened to force her to work in a munitions factory, she got a job in an Innsbruck laundry.

Among the first to greet the Americans when they entered the town were Virginia and her companion. They offered their services and now are working here for the military government as interpreters.

Virginia, her sight completely restored, is carrying on with her singing lessons. She once sang for Richard Strauss, who accompanied her at the piano and predicted a brilliant future for her in opera.

The 30 year old Chicago girl and her Viennese benefactor whom she calls "my adopted mother" said they hope to go to the United States as soon as circumstances permit.

OOMS DEFENDS PATENT SYSTEM, DESPITE ABUSES

Despite weaknesses in the present patent system, it should be retained in the public interest, Casper Ooms, newly appointed commissioner of patents, said yesterday on the University of Chicago's Round Table broadcast over the NBC network.

"Without patent rights the inventor would tend to hold his discovery underground," Ooms said, "and the public interest would suffer. Weaknesses exist, however. There is often a difference in the patent office's definition of what is patentable and that of the courts. There are delays in corrective legislation and enforcement of the present law."

Other speakers were Bernard Thiess, attorney, and Edward H. Levi of the department of justice. The speakers suggested reform of abuses by canceling patents which are wilfully abused, clarifying what is patentable, compulsory licensing where public interest requires it, and allowing patents to run not more than 20 years.

WHY MATE SHOT HER, KILLED SELF PUZZLES WIDOW

Can't Recall Tragedy at Yank's Homecoming

Mrs. Florence Rzeszutko, 27, who was wounded in the neck by her husband as they danced at a party early yesterday, had no recollection of the incident when she regained consciousness last night in County hospital.

As a phonograph played "I'll Keep On Loving You," her husband, Edward, 28, of 3629 S. Hermitage av., drew a revolver and shot twice. The party was being held in the dimly lighted four room basement apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wojcik, 3651 S. Hermitage av., to celebrate the homecoming from England of the Wojciks' son, Edwin, an army sergeant.

Asks If She Is Hurt

"Are you hurt, honey?" Rzeszutko was heard to ask his pretty, brunette wife.

"Yes," she answered in a weak voice.

"Then I might as well finish the job," he said, and fired a third shot into his head. He died en route to County hospital.

"All I can remember is that I was dancing with my husband and suddenly I felt a pain in my cheek," Mrs. Rzeszutko said. "I don't know anything that happened until I woke up here in the hospital."

She was at a loss to understand her husband's action, she said.

Happy Married Life

"We have been happy all the time we have been married," she said. "He always was well behaved. We got along fine. I knew he had the pistol. It was a German Luger he bought about two months ago from a friend. He said he wanted it for a war souvenir."

Rzeszutko, a civilian clerk in the army quartermaster department, was a close friend of Sgt. Wojcik. He was one of the gayest at the party, the other guests said.

When the lights were turned up after the shooting, Mrs. Rzeszutko, wounded in the neck, was lying over her husband's body. The phonograph was still playing. The first bullet had gone into the ceiling.

Miss Lorraine Lamoureaux, 22, of 3410 Wood st., told police she felt the gun in Rzeszutko's pocket and he told her he carried it because he was in the secret service. Police said he was not.

The Rzeszutko's have a son, Ralph, 3.

TWO AUSTRALIAN GENERALS SAVED BY FLASHLIGHT

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 5 (AP)—A flashlight saved the lives of two Australian divisional generals, their aides and crewmen when their plane was forced down last week in waters off Lae in northeast New Guinea. The near tragedy, it was revealed today, involved Maj. Gen. H. C. H. Robertson, commander of the 5th Australian division which is confining 30,000 Japanese in the Rabaul area and Maj. Gen. J. E. S. Stevens, commander of the 6th Australian division, operating against the Nipponese in the Wewak area.

The plane was forced down during a night flight to Lae and both generals were seriously injured. Stevens drifted away from the wreckage of the plane, but was saved by his aide.

When the plane crashed, Robertson grabbed for his flashlight and flashed signals over the water. An American cruiser appeared and sent out a boat to rescue the men.

PROTESTANTS ASK LIBERTY FOR SYRIA, LEBANON

DAMASCUS, Syria, Aug. 5 [Reuters]—The council of the Protestant community here today issued a declaration stating that the Protestants of Syria desired the independence of Syria and the Lebanon and the equality of all the peoples of the two states without distinction of faith. A similar statement already has been issued by the orthodox patriarch.

This was taken here as a reply to recent declarations by Monsigneur Antoine Arida, Harionite patriarch of Antioch and of all the Orient, expressing anxiety for the future of Christians in the middle east, and appealing for the continuance of French protection of Lebanese independance.

Temporal and spiritual matters of interest to the orthodox community arising out of th recent events in Syria and the Lebanon will be discussed at a patriarchal synod to be held at Damascus Aug. 10.

DAY by DAY on the FARM & GAIL COMPTON

Aug. 5, 1945.

THE stock yards will get a prize package one of these days soon. At the Fox river farm are 33 home grown, butter fat, Angus steers about ready for shipping.

These steers were raised in the big, pure bred herd at the farm. They are a little more than a year old and have been on full feed for 11 months. As a result of generous rations of corn they carry a beautiful finish and weigh around 1,000 pounds. They should come close to topping the market. The only thing that might hold them back from the $18 a hundredweight ceiling is the fact they do not carry more weight. The commission men do not like to pay the top except for cattle weighing around 1,200 pounds. This type of animal is so scarce now the farm may have a chance to get the ceiling price.

Fed Best of Everything

The manager is proud of this load of steers for they represent a great deal of care and effort. They have been fed the best of everything and should produce choice cuts. They make a beautiful picture in the barnyard with the sunlight glinting on their black coats and their well formed heads and bodies. They are pure bred.

The manager is wishing for one more good, soaking rain. He claims it would assure him a 75 bushel an acre yield on his corn if he didn't get any more moisture until September. The corn is beginning to tassel and promises to be the best crop the farm has produced since 1937.

The fact that the farm has a chance for an excellent crop while neighboring farmers are figuring on putting immature corn into the silo is due to a combination of good luck and smart farming.

Weather Breaks Just Right

The corn was planted early at the farm with the men working into the night to get the job done on time. As a result none was planted late. The weather broke right during planting for it was no sooner completed than rain and chilly weather set in and caught a majority of farmers with their fields still unplanted.

The farm has been lucky that the cold and wet did not prevent good germination of the seed. All of the fields have a good stand and the grain is as tall as a man. Chinch bugs and corn borers lost a battle against the elements and their numbers were reduced heavily by the cold rains. This helped the farm save its grain from what was expected to be a year of heavy infestation.

All of these elements have combined to produce a cheerful outlook. Neighboring farmers have been dropping around to gaze wistfully at the crop which intelligence and good fortune have helped to produce.

The GARDEN by Ben Morkland

MANY tomatoes in the sample garden on the Wheaton farm and others in many private plots are affected with a severe form of sunscald this season. Both green and ripe fruits have heavy tan-colored areas on the sides and bottoms of the fruits. In the late stages the fruits rot and break open. Sunscald is a form of weather damage and is not caused by insects. It is more common in staked tomato plants than in those left on the ground.

There is no way of combating sunscald. Insect sprays have no effect on the disease and should not be applied. If it occurs in green fruits, they should be discarded as soon as the outer skin breaks. If it occurs in ripe or semi-ripe tomatoes, part of the fruits can be saved if picked before the disease progresses into the center of the tomato. The scalded area can be cut away and the rest of the fruit is edible.

Gardeners may see small black beetles in tomatoes in the last stages of sunscald deterioration. These are not the causes of the disease; they merely feed on the damaged fruits.

ARMY MAY ASK STUDEBAKER AID ON B-29 ENGINES

Need Exceeds Output of Dodge Here

ent for the Studebaker corporation in Chicago, said the matter of making parts for the B-29s has been under discussion for some time but as far as he knew the contract hadn't been signed yet. He was careful to say that he had no information on whether the need for the parts was due to work stoppages at the Dodge plant in Chicago.

"Negotiations have been on for some time relative to our company making some parts for the B-29 motors," Fowler said. "But the contract hadn't been signed up to 4 p. m. yesterday. We don't know yet whether we or General Motors will do the work.

Future Plans Unknown

"At the present time we are taking inventory and don't know what our plans for the future are. They will depend on what contracts we get. If we are to make parts for the B-29s presumably the work will be done in South Bend.

"As far as I know, the Chicago plant, which was closed recently, is about to be leased. We could open the South Bend plant, which has been closed, for any work the government wants us to do."

Harold S. Vance, chairman of the board of the Studebaker corporation, and Paul G. Hoffman, its president, said they hadn't yet taken over any work on B-29s but that they were negotiating with the government right along for whatever work they can do to supply the needs of the army. They had no information, they said, as to whether labor stoppages elsewhere had resulted in a shortage of the parts they were to be asked to help supply.

She's Swimming in Tokens After Trip to the Beach

Laguna Beach, Cal., Aug. 5 (AP)—Mrs. Robert McMonigal went for a swim and came out 100 red points richer. While swimming she found a large tin containing 50 pounds of butter. The butter was rancid, so Mrs. McMonigal took it to a market for fat salvage. At two red points and 4 cents per pound, her net gain from the swim amounted to 100 red points and $2.

RETREATING ALLIES

While American forces advance ever closer to Japan, our allies are in the process of retreating from combat. President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee have just issued a joint announcement that the chiefs of staff spent their time at Potsdam perfecting coördination of British and American forces to insure the total defeat of Japan at the earliest possible date.

The statement to which Mr. Attlee subscribed contained a degree of ambiguity. "The British," it said, "will bring to bear against Japan all of their naval, land, and air forces which can be advantageously used." How many can be "advantageously" used against an enemy which has thrown down the challenge of a finish fight? According to our military authorities, all the forces that are available. The American army insists it must retain 7 million men. The navy will release only 30,000 of its 3½ million men, and the marines will release no one. We have pledged more than 11 million men to the fight.

We have heard of no plans for a mass British redeployment to the Pacific. Some 53 British fleet units have been listed as there. We have 1,000 or more. Adm. Mountbatten in the southeast Asia theater is said to be handicapped by Britain's failure to deliver on pledges of supplies and reinforcements. The British 8th army, which fought from El Alamein to the Po valley, has been disbanded. No new armies are being organized to head for the Pacific.

New Zealand has just cut its forces 45 per cent from a maximum strength of 100,000. Within a week Australia has stated it will reduce its army from six divisions to three. Canada is to supply only one division of volunteers, and was still short of that strength at last reports. The Canadian cruiser Uganda was ordered home from the Pacific because 500 of its crew expressed no desire for further service as volunteers. Prime Minister Smuts has said that no South African will fight in the Pacific against his will.

France has talked of token participation by two divisions, but there has been no mention of their departure. Italy was complimented at Potsdam for entering the war against Japan, but Italians presumably expect to fight from Italy. Holland has announced plans for sending three divisions totaling 100,000 men, but the only force mentioned as having been in action was one of perhaps battalion strength in Borneo, where naval forces were American and land forces preponderantly Australian.

The reduction in strength of Australian and New Zealand forces at this particular time suggests that, now that the battle has receded far from the shores of those island dominions, the remainder of the job is to be wished on the United States. The view seems to be that since our forces have been released by victory in Europe, they have no further interest or desire except to take over the entire Jap war, which they have conducted virtually without assistance in any event.

Empire policy still seems to have been stated by Winston Churchill when, in discussing the war with Japan, he wrote it off as "also, in an important degree, our battle, too." It is certainly Britain's battle as much as it is ours, but appearances might readily support the conclusion that another of Mr. Roosevelt's mistakes was in failing to accept a written commitment when Mr. Churchill offered it a few years ago, binding Britain to full participation.

Britain without argument owes a debt to its Pacific dominions, quite aside from what it owes to this country. Australians loyally came to the aid of the mother country when it was most sorely pressed and were among the most valorous of its African fighters. New Zealanders suffered heavily in Greece and Crete and they were in the lines later in Italy. Britain should repay its debt by coming to their assistance now, promptly and in full strength.

The suggestion that Adm. Mountbatten may be allocated a wider sphere of command, embracing the colonial holdings in southeast Asia and the Indies now occupied by Japan, should be welcomed in this country. If a British supreme commander is responsible for the recovery of these areas, the job will be his until it is accomplished. When the Japanese home government is forced to capitulate, we at least would be relieved of any further obligation to mop up recalcitrant enemy garrisons, if any, on the periphery of Japan's conquered empire.

This prospect may offer America scant comfort, but in view of the sterility of Mr. Truman's diplomacy at Potsdam, where we were not even given the sop of a pledge that Russia would assist in the final stage of the war with Japan, there is not much more to expect.

CHARLEY'S ANTE

Last Saturday the readers of these columns were given a break. Usually they have to be content with two columns of wisdom and wit. In dealing with the Potsdam conference, however, the editorial writers outdid themselves. They produced three columns of editorials, crowding A Line o' Type or Two off the page. The conductor of that column, Dr. Charles Collins, managed somehow to sneak into the composing room and insert a plaintive box, saying, "Apparently I have been given away to the Poles."

Today we are restoring Dr. Collins to his original boundaries, which is more than the Poles, the Finns, the Hungarians, and others may expect. In fact, it shows a tender concern for minorities which was certainly not manifest at Potsdam. We might have put Dr. Collins in a box car with his galley proofs and deported him to forced labor in the salt mines of some New York or Texas newspaper.

Dr. Collins, recently returned from a vacation at Wrigley field, engaged Mr. Delos Avery as a substitute in his absence. Mr. Avery's holidays are all those of a bookman [See Sunday book section]. He spends them in type. Anyway, he found Dr. Collins' poetry bin deplorably empty, and put on a campaign as spirited as that of the school children gathering waste paper, and not significantly different, to spur the output of poetry. We do not have the production charts before us, but we believe the drive was a modest success.

With all this emphasis upon poetry, Dr. Collins may now prefer a change of pace. His space was temporarily occupied by prose, and that, even if he cannot match the hard gemlike flame of the clauses which fleetingly visited him, gives him his lead. Now that he has lebensraum again, he can conduct a free and unfettered election with himself, putting on his thinking cap [with earlaps], if necessary, to guide him in choosing between the lyrics of his Swinburnes and the essays of his Hazlitts.

Whatever his decision, we are afraid that it will be a come-down for his readers, for they [if only for a day] on honey-dew have fed, and drunk the milk of paradise.

EDITORIAL DIRECTION FROM THE BENCH

The publisher, managing editor, and a writer for the Caller-Times of Corpus Christi, Tex., have been sentenced for contempt by County Judge Joe D. Browning because of editorial comment concerning the court's conduct of a case involving forcible entry and detainer. The sentence of three days in jail imposed upon the defendants is nominal. The issues behind the sentence are not. After spending six hours in jail, the three newspaper men obtained their release on a writ of habeas corpus. The contempt case goes to the state Court of Criminal Appeals. The matter deserves the close attention of all citizens devoted to free speech and a free press.

Judge Browning, a layman without training in law, directed a jury on May 26 to return a verdict placing the owner of a building in possession of premises which had been rented for use as a restaurant to Joe L. Mayes. Mayes was drafted into the army last January. A friend was conducting the business in his absence, and the grounds for ordering him to vacate were that he had failed to meet a $25 increase in rent. The fact that he had tendered a check for rental at the former rate, and was unacquainted with the lease provision advancing the rent, was not accepted as a defense.

The jury held out for six hours before returning the directed verdict, and did so then only with the statement, "It is to be understood that this verdict is rendered and recorded on the order of this court against the conscience of this jury." The judge had browbeaten the jury into line.

Four days after the finding had been entered in the case the Caller-Times editorially protested his conduct. Judge Browning haled the three staff members into court and took the technical position that contempt proceedings were warranted because a motion for a new trial was still before the court. As he had previously directed the verdict of the jury, Judge Browning was hardly likely to be influenced against his own preconceived opinion by anything he read in a newspaper, but that was his excuse.

The contempt sentence passed upon the respondents was to have been expected. The court's further justification for it, however, laid down a new rule of responsibility for newspapers. That was that the Caller-Times, in its discussion and accounts of the case, "omitted much material evidence that would have enabled the public generally to form a fair estimate of the real nature of the controversy." Whether a verbatim transcript of all the evidence would have rendered the newspaper immune from contempt was not stated; but the judge obviously sought refuge in some such impossible requirement before he was willing to concede that comments could be passed upon his behavior.

If this requirement were to stand, every newspaper man in America who ever took issue with an official of government, the policy of any federal, state, or municipal agency, or with any court would probably spend most of his time in jail. The OPA, for example, has a version of contempt proceedings. Following Judge Browning's rule, no newspaper could ever comment unfavorably upon the OPA unless it printed every one of the thousands of regulations published by OPA in the Federal Register. No writer or editor could criticize any court unless every particular of a proceeding had been previously published.

It is mechanically impossible, especially in days of newsprint shortages, to comply with such requirements. Furthermore, it is a violation of fundamental law to require complete presentation, or, indeed, any coverage at all, of any topic. The editor's discretion rules, for freedom of speech and of the press is freedom equally to utter or not to utter, as the choice may be.

The editor of the Caller-Times, Robert M. Jackson, who was not a respondent in the contempt action, placed a proper evaluation upon the restrictions enunciated by the court when he said, "We have every right to report to the people what is happening in their court without any editorial direction from the bench." That right must be preserved against encroachment by any instrumentality of government. The constitutional freedom that protects the press is abridged the instant any one resorts to the cloak of public authority to say what may or must be printed.

HISTORY ON SPREE

The disclosure that the Potsdam conference was held in an unmentioned edifice called the Cecilienhof instead of in the publicized New Palace of Frederick the Great causes this column to wonder if recent history will have to be slightly rewritten. Certainly the name of the meeting might be changed to the near-Potsdam conference; or shall we call it the Top Secret conference?

• • •

Anyway, out of the clutter of Hohenzollern palaces which would have provided rich material for the historical photographers and wordslingers, the Big Three mysteriously selected a domestic establishment that has no standing in the guide books—a mere dower house. The Cecilienhof was a honeymoon gift to the crown prince of World War I., and naturally it was named after the bride, who was the Duchess Cecilie of Mecklenburg. They were married on June 6, 1905, and their eldest son was born, no doubt at Cecilienhof, on July 4, 1906.

• • •

Crown Princess Cecilie was a popular character in that period. One of the German ocean liners was named after her, and we seem to remember that this ship was caught on a western voyage by the outbreak of World War I. and that it docked at Boston instead of New York. Furthermore, we think she was interned there. [Boy, bring us the clips on S.S. Kronprinzessin Cecilie.]

• • •

Well, between sessions the history makers could sit on Frau Hohenzollern's front porch, enjoying a fine view of the Spreewald waters and the Marble Palace, favorite residence of Wilhelm I., who was proclaimed emperor in the chateau of Versailles to celebrate the first German conquest of France. Perhaps, as they relaxed in rocking chairs, they said, "That imperial rock pile across the lake would have been undemocratic, and besides, our shack has modern plumbing."

FOR AN OLD GARDENER

Lord, he was never one to shirk,
But finally he had to leave his well-loved work.
And now his gay seed catalogs are thick with dust;
His idle hoe and rake are gathering rust.
The spade his patient toil kept dollar-bright
That season when a dragon-blight
Of drouth turned yielding earth to stubborn rock,
Now stands in dull disuse to mock
Our lesser hearts. No more his knowing gnarled hand
Shall take these tools to discipline his bit of land
For beauty's gain. But here he set iris and phlox,
Dancing daffodils, clove pinks, asters, and hollyhocks,
Sweet roses burning crimson glory on the wall—
He made his color pageant march from spring thru fall.
You see, Lord, he was never one to shirk,
So let his heaven be a garden plot—to work.

Case of Mistaken Identity

Mrk. Beambottom telephoned Ajax at the office and said, in an excited tone:

"Junior has just brought a small snake into the house! What'll I do?"

"Hold everything!" shouted Ajax. "I'll be there at once!"

In a few minutes he arrived, puffing.

"Where is it?"

"We threw it out."

"Good heavens! Where did you throw it?"

"Into the alley."

"Great Scott! Was there anything wrong with it?"

"No, it seemed to be well fed."

"You shouldn't have thrown it out just because it was a little fat!"

"Well, who wants a small snake in the house?"

"Did you say small snake?"

"Sure, what else?"

"Ye gods! Here I drive like mad thru stoplights, risking my life, violating traffic laws, hurrying home expecting to find a small steak!"

LINES TO A NIGHTHAWK

What is it, Bird? What have you lost
That makes you fly so tirelessly
Thru midnight dark, emitting squawks
That jar my nerves unmercifully?

What is it, Bird? Why do you squawk
Thru long night hours, forbidding sleep?
Have you no home in treetops high
Where you could silent vigil keep?

I tell you, Bird, if it's a girl,
Some feathered friend your heart desires,
Then shut your mouth. It is your voice
That makes her hide, and cools love's fires!

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

F. M. asks: "What is indicated by the green ribbon with yellow borders worn by some WACs? Why was the designation changed from WAAC to WAC?

This ribbon indicates service in the women's army auxiliary corps [WAAC] before the organization was changed to women's army corps [WAC]. Women in the WAAC were considered to be with, but not of, the army and were not entitled to privileges and benefits under laws administered by the veterans administration. They actually had the same status as civil service employes of the army. After the change was made, members of the WAC became part of the army and entitled to all privileges and benefits thereof.

J. D. asks: "Will a veteran whose farm was taken for a military camp be allowed first chance to buy the land back from the government in the event the camp is closed and the property declared surplus?"

Yes. Persons from whom property was acquired by any government agency after Dec. 31, 1939, will be notified by the government when the property becomes surplus and will have 90 days to exercise their right to buy it back at private sale. If the identical property acquired by the government has become unsuitable for further use by the former owner, such as a farmer, he will have an opportunity to buy similar property in the same general area.

LEARN TO KEEP COOL

RESIDENTS of the states below the Mason-Dixon line can teach their Yankee neighbors a few tricks on how to stay cool. The opposite is also true, for citizens of the southland may shiver at the low thermometer readings which northerners take in their stride.

The best explanation is probably preparedness for our mode of living and clothing suited to the prevailing climate. The house that is built to withstand zero readings may not be too satisfactory when the temperature is in the nineties. Air conditioning solves the problem but it is not available to the majority. Our best defense is to keep out the heat by drawing the shades and closing windows and doors about mid-morning; opening them after the sun has gone down.

The northerner is also prone to overdress. This refers mainly to men, for the women are complimented on their common sense during this season. [The same cannot be said for their winter apparel.] Except for social functions—which, incidentally, usually fall on the hottest day or night—there is little need to adhere too strictly to conventions. Fortunately, lighter weight suits are in vogue but most of us would welcome efficient propaganda directed against the fashion of starched cuffs, high collars, ties, etc. Under the present régime, hubby's chances of losing heat by radiation are practically nil. It is little wonder that he has difficulty regulating his body's thermostat.

One of the main functions of food is to furnish energy. In the summer, good Old Sol takes care of this. Overeating may add to our distress. Mother Nature offers the solution by supplying us with fresh fruits and vegetables. Knowing our weaknesses, she has even discouraged us from consuming heavy articles, especially proteins, by making them more susceptible to decay. A sensible summer diet should consist of eggs, cereal products, milk, and plenty of fruits and vegetables. When a choice does not exist there is no reason why the quantity cannot be reduced. Alcohol often disturbs our heat control mechanism. Substitute beverages are easily obtained and better tolerated.

Perspiring is an important factor. Frequent bathing prevents dirt and oil from plugging the tiny openings of the sweat glands. Plenty of liquids help to maintain the flow of this secretion. When these are chilled or iced, our state of comfort is further improved. Replacement of fluids is essential, for a man laboring in the sun can easily lose 3 gallons of sweat per day.

The amount of exercise must also be limited as exertion may increase the body temperature several degrees even during mild weather. Addicts of the siesta are not lazy but wise. For those who must work out-of-doors, the head should be protected adequately and now and then a shady spot should be sought. This applies equally to vacationers.

The ideal solution is to spend our summers in a moderate climate but rationed traveling makes this almost impossible. By observing a few simple rules, most of us can remain at home in comfort.

PITUITARY

R. G. F. writes: What does the pituitary gland do?

REPLY

We have considerable information on the effects of this structure on growth and in association with other glands, notably those of reproduction. It is a complex mechanism and we do not yet understand all of its functions.

RAW FOODS

T. W. writes: Would the eating of peeled, raw apples cause gas?

REPLY

Any food is capable of causing gas because in the natural process of digestion fermentation is necessary. When excessive, the symptom may be indicative of a gastrointestinal disorder or an idiosyncrasy.

EAR MALADIES

Mrs. T. R. writes: Is otosclerosis the same as catarrh of the ear?

REPLY

No. In otosclerosis there are changes in the bone and progressive deafness. In otitis media, or inflammation of the middle ear, a mucous discharge is usually present.

BABY'S MILK

Mrs. H. writes: In changing a baby from evaporated milk, is it better to use pasteurized or homogenized?

REPLY

It is a toss up, since both are pasteurized but, in the latter, the cream is mixed thorely into the milk.

Two Courses

There appears to be a slight difference in the manner in which the British and Americans deal with natives in the far east. Walter Simmons, Tribune war correspondent just back from the Philippines, was sitting one day in the luxurious cottage in New Guinea of a British major in an area where the British have just staked out a big territory to develop. As he and the major chatted, in trotted the major's native house boy [Salary: one cowrie shell every three months.] "Mahster," the boy said, "there's a boy out here who has a bunch of bananas he wants to sell." "Are they very good bananas?" the major asked. "Yes, mahster," the boy replied. "Well, if they're really good, tell him to bring them in and I'll look at them," the major said. Soon a naked native shuffled in bearing what Mr. Simmons described as the most beautiful bunch of bananas he had ever seen. "'All right," the major said. "The bananas are all right. Go ahead and pay him." The house boy slipped to the kitchen and came back with a cupful of salt and a spoon. The banana bearer extended his right hand, upon which he had a green leaf. The houseboy dipped out a spoonful of salt. "Mahster," indicating it, "is this all right?" The major looked at the heaping spoon. "Brush some off the top," he said. "Don't spoil him." If that had happened in the Philippines, Mr. Simmons said, the master would be chasing the native down the street. When finally cornered the native would say, "One hundred pesos, sor."

Times Are Tough

A gentleman who lives in Wakefield, Ill., has just received the following letter from the army's holding, Montgomery Ward & Co.:

"Dear Sir: We should like to be able to furnish you with the knee actions for your 1934 Chevrolet, but these items are out of stock and we are unable to get any from the factory. The back plates for these units are also unavailable. Lawn mowers and storm doors and windows are not available, either. We have the screen wire listed in our catalog, but at present it is out of stock. If you will give us the year, make, and model of your car [our italics], we will gladly let you know if we can repair the speedometer. Overalls for men are not available. Your request for a catalog is being handled separately. You will have word of it soon."

His reply: Keep the catalog.

A Miss at 150 Yards

Letter from a Chicago soldier in Berlin:

"This town is a mess. There is scarcely a house or building that hasn't been hit. Most of them are flat, and there is the smell of death everywhere. There are supposed to be more than a million bodies buried in the debris still. The weather is very warm, so you can figure it out for yourself.

"Every one is starving here. The black market is really black. Cigarets are a dollar each, or 15 to 20 dollars a pack. Candy bars are $10. However, we get only enough cigarets to keep us going.

"Every one fawns on the Yanks. The Russian soldier is cold and hard, but the gullible Yank is still pretty soft. I saw Munchen-Gladbach and was with the first outfit into Gardelegen. I saw about 900 slave workers that had been burned alive and were still smoking. I saw freed Russians shoot an oberleftenant's legs off, and soak him in gas, and burn him. So, I thought I was pretty hard . . . but still I find myself giving all my candy away. Those days when we used to kick in the doors of concentration camps and see anemic men and women too weak to move seem long ago, and are kind of hard to remember when these poor kids come up crying: 'Essen!' [Eat!]

"Still a little dirty work going on. I was sniped at day before yesterday. A 15 year old kid tried at me at about 150 yards. Missed me by at least six inches. Damn poor shooting. Then he didn't beat it. Stuck around until he got caught."

POTSDAM APPRAISAL

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 3—The outcome of the meeting of the so-called Big Three is just what might have been expected. That is, Russia ruled the roost and Stalin still remains cock of the walk. Of course there will be strenuous attempts to build up Mr. Truman as a strong, likable, common sense, Missouri Coolidge, and to say that he gained many concessions at Berlin. And tho this bunk may fool the gullible no end, still the fact remains that he bowed down before Stalin just as obsequiously as did Mr. Roosevelt.

Truman has made superficial changes which have met with popular approval, and many have acclaimed these nonessential shifts as the dawn of a new day. Also the wholesome naturalness of the Trumans has appealed to the people as such a welcome relief from the royal family role of the Roosevelts, with its attendant excesses and bizarre antics, that its real effect has been magnified out of its true proportions to the advantage of Mr. Truman.

Harry S. Truman will be no improvement over Franklin D. Roosevelt as a real statesman. He will yield to the demands of Stalin with just as much subserviency as did his predecessor, but not with like tragic personal results. Truman will survive his servility a. Roosevelt could not when he came to realize that he had met his master and it took the heart out of him. Truman is not of this kidney. As a Kansas City politician, he can bow gracefully to his boss.

LIMITS ON THE DRAFT

Decatur, Ill.—Referring to your editorial, "The Same Old Hershey," if I remember correctly, the draft act expired last May 15 and was extended by congress for one year, or until the end of the war, whichever came first. Hershey's expressed intention to continue drafting after V-J day is just another of his broken promises. I do not believe congress intended for him to continue drafting men until peace treaties are signed, maybe five years hence. They meant until next May 15 or until the end of the Jap war. M. N.

SHORTER REDEPLOYMENT HAUL

Pasadena, Cal., July 25—In sending military personnel and war materials from the European area to the Pacific area, the important fact has been entirely ignored by the war department and the ODT that it is shorter and more feasible to send such traffic via the Canadian railroads across the continent, and thus greatly relieve the railroads of the United States. I have previously made this suggestion, but no attention was given to it.

Via the Canadian route, there is a route from European ports to Churchill, Canada, on Hudson bay; thence rail via Canadian National railroad to Prince Rupert and Vancouver, British Columbia, which is only 7,900 miles, while the route via the United States is over 11,000 miles long. L. C. FRITCH,

GARBAGE CONTAINERS

Chicago, July 18—If the city fathers are sincerely desirous of a solution to the garbage problem, with its accompanying menace of infestation by rats, they have one course to follow—a study of the efficacy of the concrete garbage container, and accelerated collection of garbage.

A concrete container with metal doors at top and back is practically of lifetime use. It exudes no polluting or disagreeable odors, and it cannot be invaded by rats. I have had one for years. I consider it one of the most satisfactory investments ever made.

An ordinance should require every home, flat building, and apartment house owner to install concrete garbage containers, with a calculated capacity of 50 gallons to the family. The cost of the container could be paid in instalments, if necessary. The cost is certainly not prohibitive—$18 for a 75 gallon container. WALTER SODERBERG

HELPFUL SUGGESTION

Dieterich, Ill., July 21—Some of the folks hereabouts, seeing as how the army is still setting in Montgomery Wards, and nobody able to get it out, have expressed themselves as how Mr. Sewell Avery might call in Elliott and ask him how much he needs, let him have the amount, take off 2 per cent for cash, and mark the note paid. Am I not entitled to collect the full amount he guaranteed to pay when he signed the lease? K. K.

Yes. The tenant would remain liable for the rent to the end of the agreed term. The chances of collection from him would depend on his assets and income.

POULTRY GROUPS PREDICT A RUSH TO SELL CHICKEN

Week of Plenty to Be Followed by Famine

A week in which Chicago will get "all the chicken it wants" and then a period of panicky bidding for chickens was predicted here yesterday as the result of a department of agriculture order designed to insure the military services 125 million pounds of poultry from 12 midwest and southwest states.

Provisions of the order are such that the big processing houses will receive all the benefits and many small businesses "might as well lay off the whole staff right now," said J. Emil Hemman, president of the J. E. Hugo Hemman Co., 127 S. Water market.

Prices Favor Selling This Week

Farmers and other producers will sell a large proportion of their stock this week to obtain higher prices than the army will pay for the chicken, and after the order goes into effect Aug. 13 there will be little left for the civilian market for some time, Hemman said.

The order was explained to poultry dealers from several states at a meeting yesterday at 5 S. Wabash av. by Robert A. Hicks, chief of the farm vehicle section of the office of defense transportation; T. G. Stitts, chief of the dairy and poultry branch of the department of agriculture; Maj. Leslie J. Lindell of the army quartermaster corps, and Gordon W. Sprague, administrator of the order.

Chicken a Morale Builder

The military services have had difficulty obtaining the amounts of chicken they need because they cannot exceed ceiling prices and most of the supply has been going into the black market, Maj. Lindell said. Chicken is a morale building food and the military's requirements are only 15 per cent of the total production for the year, he said.

Any business processing 20,000 pounds of chicken a week must become authorized by the government, must meet the standards of the army veterinarians' corps, and must pack chicken under quartermaster corps standards. Military services will buy up to 50 per cent of the total production until it obtains the 125 million pounds it needs.

100 Mile Shipping Limit

Live poultry can be shipped to authorized processors only within 100 miles of the processing plant unless a certificate of necessity is obtained, Sprague said. Dressed poultry is not affected by the order.

Hemman said that less than 2 per cent of his company's poultry was received from within a 100 mile area, and many other dealers faced the same situation. He asserted the certificate of necessity was "a joke" which offers little hope of relief.

CHICAGO TRAIN HITS WASHOUT; ENGINEER DIES

Austin, Minn., Aug. 5 (AP)—The engineer of a Milwaukee road passenger train was killed and several persons were injured today when the train, en route from Calmar, Ia., to Minneapolis, struck a washout two miles west of Le Roy, Minn.

John Anderson, 64, of Austin was killed. His body was found lodged in the engine cab window.

Bert Bernatz, 2310 Glenwood av., Minneapolis, baggageman, and Mrs. Harriet Lundberg, Beloit, Wis., a passenger, were brought to St. Olaf's hospital here for treatment of injuries. Their condition was reported not serious. Several passengers were treated for injuries at the scene. There were about 125 persons aboard, most of them traveling from Chicago to Minneapolis.

Fireman Harvey Beckel of Austin, who leaped to safety, said the train, No. 103, was going about 50 miles an hour when it hit the washout. The locomotive and all cars remained upright, he added, but the engine, baggage car, and mail car crossed the washout, ripping up tracks for about 200 feet.

The first passenger coach bridged the gap, which Beckel described as 12 feet deep and 20 feet long. A second coach and three live stock cars stopped short of the gully that had been gouged out by a heavy overnight rain.

AMPUTATION WITH CARPENTER SAW RELATED

Miami Beach, Fla., Aug. 5 (AP)—A flight surgeon in Corsica successfully amputated the arm of an American soldier with a carpenter's saw, a returned army air forces medical corpsman reported today.

Sgt. James C. Webb, of Conshocken, Pa., said an accidental explosion of a hand grenade shattered the enlisted man's hand.

With no hospital or equipment beyond a limited amount of anesthesia available, the unnamed surgeon performed the crude operation with an ordinary carpenter's saw in two and a half hours, Webb related.

Five days later the patient, well on the way to recovery, was evacuated by air to an African hospital. Webb aided in the operation.

AIRLINE RIGHTS GRANTED U.S. BY SWITZERLAND

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5 (AP)—The state department today announced conclusion of an air line agreement with Switzerland based on the agreements reached at the international aviation conference in Chicago last year.

The agreement gives United States air lines the right to pick up and discharge cargo, passengers, and mail at Geneva, or another suitable airport. The Swiss gain reciprocal rights to New York altho as yet they have no air line established to fly the route.

The agreement completes another link in the planned American air lines routes over the north Atlantic to Ireland, Paris, Switzerland, Italy, Greece, and the near and middle east.

Similar pacts have been made with Sweden, Denmark, Spain, Iceland, and Ireland.

RETURN

Milroy said nothing, but his glittering eyes did not lift from Spindler. Quint was a lithe, slender man, poised and wary, with a reputation as a dangerous gunfighter. He was a recent importation at the Diamond Tail.

Spindler was no "bad man." He belonged to the class of quiet resolute pioneers.

"You rate me wrong, Bill," he said with surface amiability. "When a rifle needs fixing you have to bring it to town to a gunsmith."

Cairns had a notorious bad temper. "Did it need fixing the other night when you were plugging away at some guys from the ranch house?" he demanded.

Ramrod smiled blandly. "O, you've heard of that little rookus. Not much to it. Some boys had got hold of too much tanglefoot and were celebrating the Fourth of July a bit premature. You know how it is when whisky, a gun, and a cowpuncher get stirred up together—they make considerable noise but usually don't do much harm." He added, lightly, "Be seeing you, Bill," and pushed past him into the store.

The Pitchfork foreman glared after him, his ugly mouth set to snarl. He did not like Spindler any more than he did the man's boss.

"That will be all for now, Bill," Milroy told him in a voice low.

Sulkily Cairns nodded. It had not been his intention to call for an immediate showdown. What he wanted was to devil Spindler, roil his temper, and get away with it. Unfortunately the Quartercircle D C man had not been at all disturbed.

"Let's go get a drink," Cairns said abruptly.

Jelks followed him. Milroy stayed where he was, a thin smile on his saturnine face. He understood men like Cairns. They blew off to relieve their bilious tempers or to work up their rage to a fighting point. Quint Milroy did not waste his force in anger. He had schooled himself against emotion. Now close to 40 he had killed eight times. While still a boy, he had shot a rival in a quarrel over a woman, but since that day there had been no hatred in any of his shooting affairs. The instinct for self-preservation was well developed in him. He kept to himself if possible, a man gentle of voice and manner, scrupulously polite. When he killed it was strictly in the way of business.

The arrival of the stage was the liveliest hour of the day at Redrock until the rattle of chips began after nightfall. For when Hank Sowers drew up in a cloud of dust opposite the courthouse he brought with him news of the outside world. Ten minutes before the Concord showed on the hill summit at the end of the street Ramrod tied two saddled horses at a rack in front of the hotel just below the stage office. In order not to call attention to them he withdrew to the hotel porch and joined the chair sitters there.

Most of these were antiques, retired from the activities incident to making a living. Their main interest was gossip.

While Ramrod answered questions he kept an eye on the saddled horses. There was a rifle in the boot beside the saddle, and he did not want anybody to remove it while he was not looking. Spindler still was not expecting any trouble in town, but he had observed that Cairns and Jelks were crossing the courthouse grounds.

They stopped in the road beside the hitch rack. Since they belonged to a cattle outfit they had, of course, read the D C brand on the shoulders of the horses Ramrod had just tied to the pole. They stood beside the animals discussing the meaning of this. Spindler had come to town alone and had brought two saddled mounts with him. One of them was Blaze, a roan never ridden by anybody but Bruce Sherrill. Did this mean that the foreman had come to town to meet his boss?

Cairns stepped to the side of the nearest horse and put a hand on the rifle in the case. For a big man, Ramrod moved swiftly.

Ramrod pushed between Bill Cairns and the roan. "Don't you know better than to fool with another man's gun, Bill?"

"This the gun Sherrill shot Ben with?" he demanded.

"I wasn't present at any such shooting," Ramrod answered stiffly.

"I was," differed Cairns. "A lot of scoundrels were cutting our fence. Too bad we didn't bump off some of them. We will one of these days."

"Y'betcha!" agreed Jelks.

"You talking about fences on government land?" Ramrod asked.

"Never mind what fences. When we put up bob wire it's there to stay. You tell that to yore hoemen friends."

"I'll let you tell them," Ramrod replied.

His gaze strayed to the end of the street. The stage had reached the hill summit, and the horses were pounding down the hill at a gallop. Hank dragged them to a halt in a cloud of yellow dust exactly in front of the stage office. The two Pitchfork men sauntered forward to watch the passengers pile out of the Concord. From it emerged a fat drummer, a lanky cowboy, and a young lady who had come to teach school at Redrock. Bruce Sherrill had stepped down from the seat beside Hank.

"Nice to meet you again when you are feeling peaceable, Bill," he drawled. "Last time we met you were pouring lead into me."

The startled young woman heard the words and glanced in alarm from one to the other. Wild stories about the west had reached her in Ohio, retailed by friends who were sure that a Wyoming cow town was no place for Mattie Adams, just graduated from Oberlin college.

"That's right," boasted Cairns. "You had just shot Ben Randall and stolen his horse. You were gettin' outa there so fast I didn't get a good crack at you."

Ramrod moved into the picture leading the two horses. "Welcome home, Bruce," he said.

"If he had been smart he would have stayed away after he lit out," Jelks cut in sourly.

"The Pitchfork boys are a little on the prod today," Bruce told his foreman. "We'll have to try and not worry about that."

Sherrill's glance picked up Quint Milroy across the road. He was leaning indolently against the fence, a cigar in his mouth. Tho he was watching the group, he gave no indication of declaring himself in on any argument that might arise. The boss of the Quartercircle D C was glad of that. When Quint moved into a controversy the shadow of red tragedy was hovering close. It was time to go.

Bruce swung to the saddle. With Ramrod beside him he rode down the street and out of the square. Cairns watched angrily the two flatbacked riders disappear.

'SLAIN' WOMAN ALIVE; POLICE HOLD ASSAILANT

"I've just killed a woman," Homer E. Bryan, 26, formerly of Macon, Ga., muttered last night when he reeled into a cigar store at 2000 N. Clark st. Park Policeman William Stoeser seized Bryan and called a squad to look for the woman.

Homer E. Bryan

Police found her lying on the floor of an apartment at 301 Armitage av., bleeding from the nose, and bruised on the neck, but alive. She is Mrs. Helen Russ, 42. She told Lt. Jack Canning that Bryan beat and choked her when he discovered her daughter, Mrs. Mildred Spain, 22, making love to an unidentified soldier in the apartment.

Bryan, when Mrs. Russ identified him as her assailant, said "I'm sorry I didn't do a better job," police reported. Bryan, who lives in the Bellwood hotel, 1409 Diversey pwky., told police he had been discharged as an "undesirable" by the navy after four years of service.

Carries 39 Year Beard, Election Vow, to Grave

BURGHILL, England, Aug. 5 (AP)—Frederick Wilkins, who died yesterday, carried to his grave a flowing white beard and a 39 year growth of hair. PROBERS LEARN SPIRITS DON'T LIKE TIGHTWAD

Small Donations Called Insult by Medium

she saw something about the amputation of a right leg. Then she said she got a message from Isabel, who gave her a sweetheart's vibration. Miss Mackenberg said that Bill had had a sweetheart. The medium put her hand to her side and said grandpa was calling and wanted to know if grandpa hadn't had something wrong with his side. Miss Mackenberg obligingly recalled a tree falling on grandpa. All the persons involved were imaginary.

While she was summoning the spirits for me, the medium began to sneeze and reached for her handkerchief. She said some one among the spirits must have had hay fever. I was catching on quick. I said Martha had hay fever.

Headless Indian Guides "Butch"

Later, in the hotel lobby, Miss Mackenberg encountered two of the children who had been at the meeting and asked them if they had many guides.

"Yes, I have four," said one proudly. "My best guide is Sandra."

"Why, Sandra's my guide," protested the other.

During the meeting the medium inquired of Butch what he had seen during the week. Butch said that while walking along the street he saw a body that had no head.

"That was White Cloud, your Indian guide," said Mrs. Larney. "Next time you see him he is going to have his head on."

That night we attended a meeting in a fifth floor room of the Studebaker theater building at 410 S. Michigan av., conducted by the Rev. Clara M. Ferrier.

Mrs. Ferrier, a buxom, gray haired woman with a school girl complexion, was standing at a rostrum reading from a large book. She was garbed in a flowing white robe. As we hesitated in the doorway, she said, without turning her head, "There are two seats."

Audience Mostly Middle Aged

We entered and took the only two remaining seats, becoming customers No. 23 and 24. The audience was composed chiefly of middle-aged and elderly women, with a sprinkling of younger women and a few men.

We found this proportion constant wherever we went.

Mrs. Ferrier continued reading, something about Jeremiah. Later she closed the book and continued talking about Jeremiah in almost flawless English, altho once she tripped on "omnipotent" and later mentioned she had had a "hard job" turning from the ways of the flesh to those of the spirit. In view of her excellent state of preservation, this struck me as highly probable.

Her voice, altho well modulated, was low and occasionally was almost drowned by traffic noises. Once a low flying plane drowned her out altogether, but she appeared not to notice. The white robe must have been pretty stuffy despite a lake breeze blowing in over Grant Park, because from time to time she mopped her forehead and neck with a handkerchief as she talked.

She walked to a piano, white open toed shoes poking incongruously from beneath the ecclesiastical robe, and led the audience in singing a hymn. Then she announced the collection.

Guided by my experience of the afternoon, I put another dollar in the basket. Later I was sorry. No one else did.

Turn Out Lights; Lock Door!

Mrs. Ferrier lighted two candles on a mantlepiece behind the rostrum, flanked on one side by a floor lamp and on the other by a moth eaten rubber plant, while a man from the front row turned out the lights and locked the door.

The audience was instructed to sit quietly, with hands in lap, palms up, and concentrate in order to attract the proper spirit forces.

Mrs. Ferrier took her place behind the rostrum and stood silently, eyes closed, head tilted upward, until I thought she must be asleep. Nothing happened except that my ear itched and I couldn't scratch it for fear of disturbing the spirits.

Then the lights were turned on, and Mrs. Ferrier, gathering her white robe about her, stepped down into the audience. With the aid of three other mediums, she began giving readings.

When she got to Miss Mackenberg, she held her hand for a few seconds and said she saw a young man who came with the vibration of a son, and a marine who gave the name of Walter. She said Walter was very happy. Walter was the son. She got a message from Bill, a nephew, who was either a soldier or a sailor, and said he had died suddenly after a sharp pain in the stomach.

Private Money Talk Urged

When Miss Mackenberg asked her what Walter would want done with his insurance money, Mrs. Ferrier explained there were too many people present to get a clear message, and suggested a private Wednesday afternoon reading.

Then it was my turn, but I declined, because Miss Mackenberg had been sitting too far away for me to hear clearly, and I feared there might be some discrepancies between her imaginary family and mine, which, since we were supposed to be married, would have appeared odd.

We observed two persons in the audience who had attended the Midland hotel meeting that afternoon. Apparently there is no saturation point for spirit messages.

SIOUX INDIANS PLAN FIVE-DAY SUN DANCE IN VICTORY PRAYER

Pine Ridge, S. D., Aug. 5 (AP)—Sioux Indians of the Pine Ridge reservation, led by Chief Spotted Crow, tomorrow will begin their sun dance with prayers for a speedy victory and lasting peace. The ceremony—the third to be held in the last 69 years—will last five days.

The dance ceremony was last held in 1942. The first one preceded the battle of the Little Big Horn in Montana in 1876, when Gen. George Custer and his 7th cavalry were wiped out.

Tomorrow's ceremony at White Clay fair grounds will symbolize a request to the Great Spirit of the Indian nations for a safe return of the men in the army and navy. Tech. Sgt. Joseph B. Red Door, holder of the silver star and Purple Heart, will take part in the ceremony as guest of honor.

Three buffaloes in Custer State park were killed by a hunting party Thursday to provide meat for the ceremonies.

2 CLOUD LAYERS IN STORM CAUSE UNUSUAL SUNSET

An unusual pink and purple coloring of the entire sky at sunset last night was caused by reflection and diffusion of the sun's rays thru two layers of clouds during a brief interval between thunderstorms, Forecaster H. A. Downs of the weather bureau explained.

An upper layer of alto stratus clouds was sufficiently broken up to let the sun thru to the lower bank of cumulo nimbus clouds.

"Reflection and diffusion of what little sun there was caused the pink and purplish color," Downs said. "Any time you get smoke and moisture in the western sky, you have a red sunset. This time there were unusual cloud formations to catch the light just as one thunderstorm passed to the northeast and another shower came up from the southwest."

WE WAITED a long, long time to see a newspaper headline saying: "Aluminum released for civilian demands."

We waited for that day because we know how much women miss new aluminum cooking utensils, aluminum-wrapped food products, and new light-weight household appliances of aluminum. And, now that Alcoa Aluminum has been released for these things, and you may not yet be able to find your favorite line of aluminum products in the stores, we believe that you would like to know you will get them:

1. Just as soon as workers are released from war work so they can take jobs making civilian goods.

2. Just as soon as such work does not interfere in any way with existing or future war contracts.

3. Just as soon as other parts which manufacturers use with aluminum, such as small motors, handles, etc., are available in sufficient quantities.

4. Just as soon as shipping containers and shipping space are available.

We join with you in wishing that this day may come speedily. We know you also join with us in recognizing that winning the war comes first and nothing must interfere with it.

But it is gratifying to know that the good things of the aluminum age are within sight and that you will soon be enjoying more and more of the Alcoa Aluminum that has done so much to lighten the burdens of everyday life.

PHYSICIANS ASK IF U. S. PLANS FORCED SERVICE

Cite Reported Move for Socialized Medicine

An investigation to determine whether physicians are being refused discharges from the armed services so they can be forced later into socialized medical programs contemplated under the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill was demanded yesterday by the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons, Inc.

Reports that the army and navy have a "tremendous surplus" of physicians badly needed in civilian practice were cited in a letter sent to President Truman, members of congress, and military and naval officials. It was signed by Dr. Andrew J. Sullivan of Chicago, president of the association, and Dr. H. W. Detrick of Hammond, Ind., secretary.

"The A. A. P. S. believes that immediate release should be given to as many doctors as is consistent with the successful execution of the war effort," the letter read.

Cite "Disquieting" Rumors

"Disquieting rumors persist that:

"1. Since V-E day there is a tremendous surplus of physicians in the armed forces.

"2. Medical officers will be kept in the services against their consent even after the war is terminated.

"3. Medical officers are being retained in the services and eventually will be forced into the veterans administration.

"4. Older medical officers will be kept in the armed forces; then forcibly transferred to the veterans administration. Younger physicians will be released from their internships to form a nucleus of doctors who would accept the political control of their practices, and start the socialized medicine program proposed in the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill, which would regiment both physicians and patients.

See Profession Weakened

"5. By keeping more than 40,000 physicians in the military service, and thus silencing this large group of opposition to regimented medicine, the ranks of the American medical profession will be so divided and weakened that schemes for controling physicians and their patients can be made more easily operable.

"6. Physicians are being kept in the services for the purpose of eventual transfer to the public health services, and then using them to staff large government hospitals, which have been built during the war period.

"The above stories have been spoken and written with enough consistency and frequency to cause grave concern, and in the opinion of the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons warrant a thoro and exhaustive investigation."

It's the new purse for extravagant wives. When opened those arms pop out.

DEMANDS EARLY ARMY RELEASE OF PHYSICIANS

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 5 (AP) — The Michigan State Medical society asked the army and navy today for the "early and prompt release" of physicians who can be spared from the services.

In a statement issued over the names of society officers and members of its council, the organization said the release of such physicians was "a matter of the utmost urgency and importance."

The society said that approximately 9,000 medical officers should be released if the "present intention" of the army and navy is to discharge 1,800,000 men. The society said it based its estimate on the average of five physicians for each 1,000 personnel.

"After the medical needs of all the military services are satisfied, any delay in releasing a physician should be avoided as an injustice to the public, an unnecessary burden on the treasury, a source of criticism of those in authority, and unfair treatment of the doctor of medicine who is serving his country," the society said.

FORT DEARBORN ANNIVERSARY TO BE OBSERVED

Services commemorating the 133d anniversary of the battle of Chicago, fought on the Lake Michigan shore after the evacuation of Fort Dearborn, will be held at 11 a. m. Aug. 15 at the southwest pylon of the Michigan av. bridge, Col. Harry A. Musham, chairman of the Fort Dearborn memorial commission, announced yesterday.

By proclamation, Mayor Kelly has designated Aug. 15 as Fort Dearborn day.

Musham said the Chicago Historical society would be represented by Director Paul M. Angle at the services, in which the United States Daughters of 1812 and the Illinois society of the Sons of the American Revolution would coöperate. A platoon of military police will render military honors while memorial wreaths will be placed on statuary depicting the Fort Dearborn massacre.

Woman Buried in Woods Found Homicide Victim

Dracut, Mass., Aug. 5 (AP)—Police tonight asserted after a pathological examination of the body that Mrs. Mary George Saunders, 20, whose nude corpse was found partly buried in a woodland here last Wednesday, was a victim of homicide and that death was not caused by illegal surgery as first believed. More than 60 persons already have been questioned in connection with the case.

LIMIT OF 655,000 REFRIGERATORS IS SET FOR 1945

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5 (AP)—A production limit of 1,155,000 domestic mechanical refrigerators during the rest of this year and the first three months of 1946 was fixed today.

The war production board announced that the industry, just resuming manufacture of consumer goods, will be held to 655,000 units during the current and fourth quarters of 1945, and to 500,000 the first quarter of next year.

WPB said the ceilings are necessary because of a shortage of sheet steel.

While priorities have been assigned for manufacture of 265,000 refrigerators this quarter, WPB expects that not more than 150,000 will be produced. All of these, it added, will become a part of the frozen stockpile and will be reserved for hospitals, the military, and other high priority customers. None will be sold at retail.

WPB said these distribution restrictions will be lifted just as soon as priority requirements have been met.

KIN TO ASK VISA FOR REFUGEE, 13, ADOPTED BY GIs

Relatives of David Hoffman, 13, who was adopted by an American regiment after he escaped from the Dachau concentration camp in Germany, have been told by the Red Cross that they should apply for a visa so the boy eventually may come to the United States under the quota system.

David fled the prison after his parents and six brothers and sisters were killed by the Nazis. His only remaining sister, Mrs. Rosalie Brenner, 1354 Devon av., who came here from Czechoslovakia in 1939, first learned her brother was alive in May when a Red Cross report reached her. She now is making arrangements to apply for a visa for David.

The boy was found wandering in Germany by members of the 925th aviation engineers, who gave him medical treatment, food, clothing, and affection. Several members of the regiment wrote to their parents, asking that the boy be adopted. He still is living with his soldier friends pending the outcome of efforts to bring him to this country.

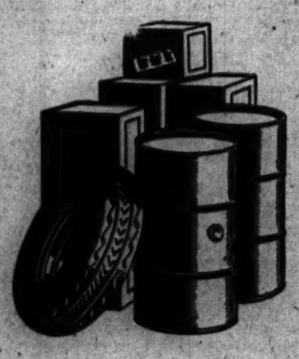
ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

Just three reasons why
"IT'S A TOUGH ROAD TO TOKYO"

1. Fighters

Japan has 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 first-string fighting men right now, ready for us, waiting for us. Waiting till we get closer. And in addition, 1,000,000 men of military age who have not been called to the colors and more than 1,000,000 physically fit young men between 17 and 18 years old who have only recently been subject to the draft. Yes, 6,000,000 to 7,000,000 Japs that we haven't yet tackled—that's one reason why "It's a tough road to Tokyo."

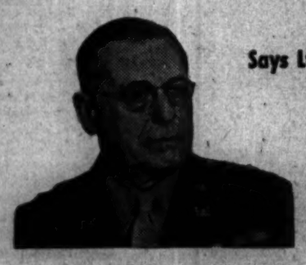


2. Materials

The Japs have been making and gathering war supplies for years and years. They have huge stock piles of vital war materials—reserves of high-octane gasoline, oils, rubber, fuels, steel, chrome, nickel, manganese—and they have mines and mills and plants constantly producing more. They have almost no consumer production, virtually everything is war production. That's another reason why "It's a tough road to Tokyo."

3. Workers

In Japan's island home alone is a vast army of 35,000,000 workers fighting for her fighters—seven-days-a-week workers. There are millions more in Manchuria, Korea, and Formosa. And an almost unlimited supply of manpower in conquered territories. Untold millions in conquered lands can be forced to work for Japan—Japan's war-worker strength is mighty. But—these are only three of a thousand reasons why "IT'S A TOUGH ROAD TO TOKYO."



Says Lt. General Eugene Reybold, Chief of Engineers:

"It will take hard work and a grueling fight. Besides that, it will take all our patience to beat the Jap. Every American is eager for the big attack, but before we can hurl the full weight of our Army against Japan, we must build places for them to live and fight from. Airstrips, camps, hospitals, roads, bridges. Bases on Okinawa, Iwo Jima, in the Philippines. We are building now with utmost speed, and in these tense months we need your work, your backing, and your patience."

STUDY ARCADE PROJECTS FOR CONGRESS ST.

Plan Would Give Traffic More Space, Cost Less

BY ROBERT HOWARD

Sidewalk arcades thru such buildings as the Congress and the Auditorium hotels are being studied by city engineers as one means of providing more room for automobiles in Congress st. between State st. and Michigan av.

On most super-highway routes, entire buildings will be condemned and demolished. That would be a too expensive at Michigan av., however, so the current idea is to shove the sidewalks right back into the buildings. Lobby sitters in the hotels might be crowded, but the arcades wouldn't interfere with the upper stories.

Would Save Money

Eventually motorists in the proposed Congress st. expressway will be able to reach Grant park via a tunnel under the busy streets south of the loop, altho V. E. Gunlock, acting commissioner of subways and super-highways, said yesterday that he might be a lot older before it happens.

Meanwhile the east end of Congress st. is to be a surface thorofare. Gunlock is studying eight sets of arcade plans. The city council has approved a project to cut 18 feet all the way up, from buildings on the south side of Congress st. and 12 feet from those on the north. That would cost an estimated 3 million dollars. Arcading might cut the cost as low as $440,000, Gunlock said.

Four Traffic Lanes

Arcade plans would provide from 52½ to 72 feet of driving surface, enough for four traffic lanes, plus two parking or service lanes. Back of the building foundations, 12 foot sidewalks would provide room for pedestrians.

The Auditorium is the only structure in the two blocks where the walls carry much of the weight of the building. Even so, most of the first floor walls could be removed, letting the street run to the piers that support the building.

Might Try Arcades First

The other five major structures in the two blocks are of steel skeleton construction. The Wabash building, at the northwest corner at Wabash, has seven stories and the Sears store at State st. has eight. On the south side of the street are the Congress Bank building, at the southwest corner of Wabash, and the Ohio building at the southeast corner of Wabash, both seven stories, as well as the 11 story Congress hotel at Michigan av. The Congress is set five feet back of the line of the other buildings.

Gunlock said the arcades might be tried first, on an experimental basis, on the south side of the street. Meanwhile, foundation studies are being made to make sure that tunnels to carry two lanes of cars in each direction could be constructed.

EXPLAINS DEVICE THAT SENDS 488 WORDS A MINUTE

Radio Paper Says 8 Channels Are Used

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Details of the development of word transmission to the point that eight channels are employed simultaneously to carry messages thousands of miles thru a single radio transmitter are disclosed in the current issue of Radio Age, published by the Radio Corporation of America, which perfected the system.

The invention, known as the time division multiplex telegraph, can carry 488 words per minute inward and outward simultaneously, corresponding to eight channels each way with an individual channel speed of 61 words per minute. The system was placed in operation between San Francisco, Cal., and New York and London during the San Francisco conference to expedite the flow of press and official traffic. The equipment permits the operation of four or two channels instead of eight when desired.

May Operate in Two Directions

All eight channels may be used for two way communication with one distant station. Or they may be set up in such a manner that four channels with a total capacity of 244 words per minute may be operated in both directions simultaneously between two different stations, with automatic re-transmission of one or more of the channels to a third station.

The printing mechanism incorporated in the new multiplex system is reported to make the circuit more nearly error proof, despite its high speed. If any letter is mutilated or garbled in transmission a bell rings under the receiving printer. At that instant, in lieu of the mutilated character, a maltese cross appears to mark the place of the error and to facilitate correction.

A Time Saving Device

Besides the bell on each channel for indicating incorrect signals received at the printer, another bell of noticeably different pitch is employed. With this device, the receiving operator, by means of a switch similar to a dial telephone, can pass numerous stock phrases for service back to the transmitting end, and thereby save channel operating time.

This development is expected to increase R. C. A.'s world-wide traffic to 200 million words per year, as compared to 63 million before the war.

Chicago Colony Quits Nation's Capital for Vacation Resorts

BY JUDITH CASS

MANY of the Chicagoans who are living in Washington, D. C., for the duration have scattered to cooler climes for the summer months. Mrs. Thorne Donnelley and her daughter and son, Naoma and Barney, are in their Lake Bluff home, but Comdr. Donnelley will not be able to leave his navy post in the capital to join them. He is living for the summer on his yacht, the Mako, which is anchored at 8th st. and Maine av., Washington.

Miss Donnelley was introduced to society in Washington and New York last winter. She will not have a party here, but will be seeing many of her old friends before the Donnelleys return to Washington in September. Miss Donnelley attends Finch Junior college in New York.

At Northport Point, Mich., for a few weeks are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Swigart Jr., and their son, Robbie. Mrs. Swigart and Robbie will remain there until August. Mrs. Philip Owen (Lillian Dudley) and her two daughters are visiting in Connecticut, where they used to live. Escaping some of Washington's heat are Mrs. Gordon Loud and her two children, Annabelle and Johnnie, who are visiting on a farm in New Jersey where Mr. Loud joins them for week-ends.

Near Washington neighbors are the Ambrose C. Cramers, the Wendel Kuhns, the Earl Kribbens, and the Nevile Gardiners. Mrs. Kribben has been attending most of the senate committee hearings on the united nations charter. Mrs. Gardiner, the former Madeleine Michelson Maher of Chicago, and her husband have one of the tiniest houses in the Georgetown district. The kitchen and dining room are in an English basement. There is a minute garden in the rear of the good sized living room on the first floor. The Gardiners' bedroom and bath are on the second floor, and young Colin Maher's quarters are on the top floor.

As Maj. John C. Murphy is stationed at Camp Meade, his wife, the former Peggy Hambleton, is in Washington frequently to see old friends. In Lake Geneva, Wis., for the summer are Rep. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Smith of Racine, Wis., and their daughter, Betty, just back from a year of duty with a Red Cross clubmobile in China. The Smith's son, John, has returned from New Guinea, where he was stationed for 36 months as a medical corpsman. He is at Percy Jones hospital, Battle Creek, Mich., waiting for his discharge, and hopes to come to Lake Geneva later. Mrs. Smith who chalked up a bond sales record during the 7th war loan drive, is a former national president of the American Legion auxiliary. Another daughter of the Smiths, Mrs. William Walsh, expects Sgt. Walsh to join her and their daughter in Madison, Wis., as soon as he recovers from wounds he received in Europe. He is expected to receive his medical discharge from McGuire General hospital in Richmond, Va.

Debut Notes

Added to the debut list is the name of Miss Anne Badger, elder daughter of Mrs. Winterbotham, Badger, who will be presented to society during the Christmas holidays. Miss Badger and her mother are spending the summer in Vergennes, Vt. As she will go directly from there to her classes at Smith college, Miss Badger does not expect to return to Chicago until Christmas time.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Jones have set Dec. 27 as the date for a debut tea at home for their daughter, Barbara. After the party the debutante, who attends MacMurray college, and her assistants and their escorts will go on to the Pump room for dinner and dancing. At present the Joneses are at their summer home, the Lilacs, in Grayslake.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yeomans will give a small tea at home on Thursday in their Winnetka home to present their daughter, Carol, to society. Miss Yeomans, a graduate of the North Shore Country Day school, attended the University of Chicago last year.

Miss Marcia Turner will be presented to society at a tea on Aug. 26 in the Winnetka home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Wood Turner. The bud, who attended the North Shore Country Day school and New Trier, will return to Pine Manor in the fall for her senior year.

On the Calendar

Members of the Woman's Symphony orchestra and of its board have been invited to a garden party and supper on Thursday evening in the home of the association's president, Mrs. Jack V. Spachner of Highland Park. The orchestra's plans for the coming season, which now are being completed, include the appearances of three guest artists. George Czaplicki, baritone, will appear with the orchestra on Oct. 5; Rudolf Firkusny, pianist, on Nov. 9, and Maria Kurenko, soprano, on Dec. 14.

Nov. 16 is the date set for the South Shore Service league's annual benefit cocktail party and fashion show. It will be held in the Casino club. Mrs. Joseph J. Cavanagh is president of the league.

Weddings

The marriage of Miss Arlene De Ano, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. J. De Ano of Bellwood, to Lt. Byron T. Hawkins of the marine corps took place June 9 in the Peace Evangelical church in Bellwood. The bride attended the University of Chicago, at which Lt. Hawkins also studied under the navy V-12 program. He also attended Northwestern university and Oberlin college. They are at home in Oceanside, Cal., where he is stationed at Camp Pendelton. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hawkins of Bellwood.

Announcement is made by Mrs. Sidney A. Wright of Evanston of the marriage June 13 of her daughter, Muriel, to Howard W. Moody of the navy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moody of Crawford, Neb. The wedding took place in the Hemenway Methodist church, Evanston, followed by a reception in the Georgian hotel. Mr. Moody, who has returned from two years in the European war theater, has taken his bride to Norfolk, Va., where he has reported for reassignment.

Ravinia Hears Bernstein Lead His Own Score

Concert by Chicago Symphony orchestra, Leonard Bernstein conducting. Presented at Ravinia Sunday afternoon, Aug. 5, 1945. The program: Symphony, B-flat major, No. 103....Haydn Suite from "Fancy Free".....Bernstein Symphony No. 5.....Shostakovich

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

Leonard Bernstein's twice postponed concert suite from his ballet "Fancy Free" finally came to belated performance at Ravinia yesterday afternoon. The excuse for the double shift of date had been the necessity for more rehearsal, and it was quickly apparent that Mr. Bernstein wasn't fooling. Everyone had to work, and hard, but it was worth it.

Divorced from the stage picture, the score of "Fancy Free" stands forth more clearly in both its merits and defects. With the eye constantly guided by the jolly tumbling of the three sailors, the ear was likely to overlook the remarkable ingenuity and effectiveness of the rhythmic patterns and to take for granted the cleverness and variety of the instrumentation. In concert performance both these elements became predominant, and while the music obviously still remains of the theater, and specifically of the ballet, its entertainment value per se remains high.

In the theater its tunes sounded pert and catchy; in concert performance they are the score's weak point. A few of the short themes have point and meaning; the more extended tuneful parts become commonplace beyond the demands of their subject. They derive from the ragtime rather than the swing era, and they are not very good rag at that. The suite is also lessened in interest by the inclusion of too much filler—passages necessary to carry on the dramatic action but without intrinsic musical value.

But by and large it was excellent fun, and sharing in the good time had by the audience, the orchestra and the composer-conductor, was Pierre Monteux, looking tanned and fit like a kindly Buddha in his box, and paying the generous tribute for which he has long been famous to that which is young, new, and progressive in art.

Mr. Bernstein's luck with the weather was no better than at his first appearance of the week. Rain brought the standees and the outside audience into the pavillion after the first movement of the Haydn and thereafter thunder punctuated the music like some percussion instrument added as an afterthought by the various composers.

Both Haydn and Shostakovitch symphonies were repeated from earlier programs. The former went with a good deal of gusto but with a restraint that deserted the excitable young conductor when he got into the more hysterical pages of the latter.

Grant Park Faithful Sit Thru Rain to Applaud Solomon and His Soloists

If any one from the other planets was looking down at Grant Park last night, he must have been impressed at what mortals will put up with to hear a little music. For it was raining at Grant Park, as elsewhere, a steady downpour that now and then blew up a flurry that streaked the turbulent skies with lightning, but most of the time just came down quietly to make the corn grow. But that little audience, huddled under umbrellas, raincoats and sopping newspapers, didn't budge. It heard everything on Izler Solomon's program with the Grant Park Symphony orchestra, including his two soloists, the 16 year old violinist, Sidney Weiss, and the 12 year old boy soprano, André Aerne—everything, that is, except Smetana's "The Moldau." Mr. Solomon canceled that, no doubt thinking there were enough rivers in Grant Park without invoking Bohemian torrents.

Yet, as such things often go, it was an uncommonly gay concert. Everybody was in the same damp boat except the nice dry musicians in their shell and a few of us on newspaper row who had the gallant protection of an enormous park board umbrella, once we braved the rain and mud to get there. For there isn't any doubt that Mr. Solomon has a way with an orchestra, and an audience. His music was chiefly chosen from the lighter shelf, and it was expertly played. Most of us were a little sorry when the concert ended, because, ironically, the rain quit then, too. We might as well have had "The Moldau."

Mr. Solomon began with the overture to "The Gypsy Baron," lighthearted Strauss that didn't mind the obbligato of the rain. He did a puffball performance of the Rameau-Mottl ballet suite, which had true elegance in its high spirits, then turned to Borodin's fiery dances from "Prince Igor," changed the pace with Ormandy's good setting of Bach's choral, "Sleepers Awake," and wound up with a bravura version of the first of Enesco's Romanian rhapsodies, which had a resilient quality of contrast and climax to suggest that orchestra and conductor were by that time old friends.

It was hardly the night for a young violinist to tackle the allegro maestoso of Paganini's D major concerto, a work fairly encrusted with ornamentation, but Mr. Weiss tried it, and won. A calm boy with a fine tone and unmistakable talent, he carried his violin out in its case to keep it dry as long as possible, and he played with a quiet security that made his future look far rosier than the weather. It was hardly the night for a boy soprano, either, but André Aerne is an imperturbable youngster with a clear and lovely voice, and he, too, was undaunted thru the Bell Song from "Lakmé" and an encored "Last Rose of Summer." Perhaps both of them will get another chance on a balmier night.

Clothing Need of 2 Babies and Sick Man Told

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

Mrs. W., whose husband has been in service for two years, and their two small daughters, 2 years old and 17 months old, live in a damp basement flat on the northwest side. Depressed and discouraged because illness and the resultant accumulation of bills for medical care has prevented her buying clothing, she has asked our readers to aid. Wearables for the youngsters in sizes 2 and 3, and shoes, 6½ and 7; and for herself in size 14 and shoes, size 6½, will help.

Mr. J., who has suffered with tuberculosis and has been unable to work for several years, must leave Chicago for the higher, drier climate of the west. Arrangements have been made for his admittance to a sanitarium, but he lacks suitable clothing for travel. He has asked our assistance in obtaining a suit and topcoat, size 42; shirts, 15½, and shoes, size 9½. His wife, who will accompany him, need.. shoes, size 7. A small radio would help pass the long days at the sanitarium.

We have some surplus offers of jars to be used for preserving, which we submit for the benefit of those who are deep in canning problems and in need of extra containers. Please write in your requests to this department. Telephone appeals cannot be considered.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

What Counts

Douglas Lurton, author of the recently published, "Make the Most of Your Life," pays particular heed to a study made by Prof. Frank S. Endicott of Northwestern university.

Prof. Endicott sounded out the opinions of personnel and employment officers of 70 of our largest companies, employing on an average 8,000 college graduates each year. He asked this representative group of employers to list essential personality traits, with this result, in the order of frequency of mention:

Forty-nine—Ability to get along with people and work coöperatively with others.

Thirty-five—Ability to meet and talk easily to people.

Thirty-two—Attractive appearance, neatness, and good grooming.

Seventeen—General alertness.

Fifteen—Dependability.

Fifteen—Industry, energy, drive, and enthusiasm.

Thirteen—Initiative and originality.

Nine—Sense of humor.

Nine—Confidence and self-assurance.

Seven—Good manners and courtesy.

Diplomacy

If friends to both you wish to stay,
Don't tell Kay she looks like May.

Should you tell Kay she looks like May
She'd sneer and coldly walk away.

While if to May you'd say the same
She'd answer, "Me—look like that dame?"

Far better if each one would say,
"The nicest thing I've heard today!"

Inquiring Camera Girl

By Maryon Zylstra

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by David Deutsch, Brooklyn, N. Y.]

THE QUESTION

What is it that women don't like about women?

WHERE ASKED

Union station.

THE ANSWERS

Harriet Wood, secretary, Denver, Colo.—As a general rule, women are catty and disloyal to other women where men are concerned. They are never satisfied with what they have and are always trying to outdo another woman. And when men are around they act so helpless as if they can't do anything by themselves.

Mrs. Vivian Phillips, housewife, East Peoria—Don't you suppose women dislike women because of lack of interest? Women like to talk but there aren't many of them who like to listen. When they're with men they can be the center of attention, and when they're with women it's every girl for herself.

Mrs. H. J. Shutts, service representative, Plattsburgh, N. Y.—I suppose women see their own faults in other women. Something I hate about myself I usually find in other women to hate. Most women are past masters of the art of triviality. They cling to the minor details and dwell on the unimportant things.

Mrs. Toni Lund, switchboard operator, Allerton hotel—Women are generally more catty and envious than men are. Why is this? It is probably because women spend too much time fussing over themselves and as a result don't have a great deal of time left to notice other women as the men do.

Mrs. E. E. Jordan, housewife, Jersey City, N. J.—Attention is probably the main reason why women dislike women. They are generous with compliments and equally as generous with digs in the back when the other girl isn't around to hear. Nobody likes a gossip and most women, unfortunately, are gossips.

Mrs. Hazel Kinney, secretary, 72 E. 15th, Chicago Heights—Too many women are wrapped up in their own minor troubles and don't have a broad view of what is going on around them. They aren't interesting as men are because they're too petty minded. That is probably why they don't ordinarily make good bosses.

More Autos Needed for Orphans' Outing in Park Wednesday

Twenty women volunteers today will commence assembling and packing toys in preparation for the 21st annual outing of 5,000 underprivileged orphans, crippled children, and old people to be held on Wednesday in Lincoln park. Head of the volunteers, most of whom are wives of Orphans' Automobile Day association members, is Barney E. Smith, who for the last 10 years has been chairman of the association's toy packing committee.

Carl J. Johnson, president of the association, said that except for a shortage of 175 cars to transport guests to and from the park, everything is in readiness for the outing. The most urgent need is for 65 more autos and drivers to provide transportation for orphans at St. Hedwig Industrial school, John P. Keating, transportation chairman, said. He said he hopes that, with 50 per cent more gasoline alloted A coupon holders this year than in 1944, motorists will donate their services and use of their cars so that no orphan or old person will be forced to miss the outing.

The program of music and games will be highlighted at 4 p. m. by a dance.

Physical Fitness Club to Hold Outing Sunday

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

Mrs. Flora W., Chicago—To remove an odor of kerosene, I sponge with vinegar.

Mrs. Florence Hornacki, 5925 S. S. Paulina, Chicago—To make my white shelf paper last longer, now that it is scarce, I place wax paper over it. This can be wiped with a damp cloth and is easy to keep clean.

Grace W., Racine, Wis.—I find that 2 parts spirits of camphor, 1 part oil of cedar, and 2 parts oil of citronella is a better mosquito deterrent than just plain citronella.

The shortage of mayonnaise in the stores is caused by the scarcity of oils from which mayonnaise is made. Salad dressings of a different type must tide us over. There are very good commercially prepared dressings which contain only small amounts of oil. At home we can make old fashioned boiled dressing which require little fat. Sour cream dressings are also good fillers-in. Here's one which is a little unusual in that it is cooked.

Cooked Sour Cream Dressing

Combine 1 cup commercially soured cream with 1 slightly beaten egg, ¼ cup lemon juice or vinegar, 1 tablespoon sugar or honey, ½ teaspoon mustard, 1 teaspoon flour, salt and pepper to taste. Stir constantly in top of double boiler over hot water until dressing thickens.

Most women are buying a week's supply of meat on one day, which means that home storage conditions must be carefully watched to keep the meat in good condition until served. Meat should be kept in the coldest place in the refrigerator, which usually is directly under the freezing tray. If your refrigerator has a "meat keeper," that's fine. Meats should be unwrapped for storage, or covered loosely with a piece of waxed paper. Most meat authorities agree that it should be unwrapped immediately after bringing from the market before placing in the refrigerator. Ground meats should be used first, as they spoil more readily than meats in the piece.

After meat has been cooked it should be covered or wrapped in waxed paper for refrigerator storage to prevent surface drying.

Picnic coffee prepared in an open kettle can be good if the coffee maker is careful not to let the coffee actually boil, and to use the correct proportions. Accepted proportions are 1 pound coffee to 2 gallons water. Tie the coffee rather loosely in a sugar sack or muslin bag. There must be room for swelling of grounds, and for the water to circulate. Bring the water to a boil, and when it boils rapidly, push the kettle away from the highest heat, so that water is held just under the boiling point. Add the sack of coffee and use a stick or paddle to agitate it. Slosh it up and down frequently for a 12 to 15 minute brewing period. Lift the sack out, let it drain, and remove it altogether. There's your coffee, perfect, and most welcome to the picknickers. Don't allow it to boil, but keep it hot as long as it lasts.

Fearless Boy Not the Same as Brave One

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

If your boy isn't a fighter, here are some thoughts for you:

All men aren't physically brave, rather, physically fearless, which after all is the accurate way to put it. Neither are all children physically fearless. Some of this is a matter of training, for certainly fearful, overprotective rearing can affect a child in this phase of development. But different children are constituted differently—in muscles, nerves, imagination, and so they differ in this respect. Consequently, we must not expect the same response from all children to the same situation.

Also we who are fathers and mothers must not confuse fearlessness and bravery. It is not cowardly to be afraid of something. Neither is it brave to do something of which you have no fear at all. The bravery or the cowardice consist of the way in which a feared experience is met. Parents, in the ideals they hold for their children, especially their boys, are too ready with their labels, "brave" and "cowardly."

Also there is such a thing as moral courage, as well as physical courage. This is another thing grownups are too likely to overlook. A boy who doesn't care to fight—who may shrink from the impact of a blow or be loath to give one—may show fine moral courage in being truthful in a tight spot, in holding to a belief or line of action in the face of ridicule or in bearing pain and yet be labeled "coward."

Many parents worry because their boys aren't fighters. Some just aren't. I know several muscularly strong men, cool, level headed, and physically brave, who avoid a fight and always have, even as boys. Children vary. Some boys like a fight, and look for one; some fight with gusto to defend themselves. It lets off a lot of steam, clears the air, and satisfies those old primitive urges, but some boys just don't want to fight at all. That doesn't mean they're cowards.

Admit this in your own mind. At the same time be ready to recognize the qualities of mental or moral courage and foster them.

And last, don't, whether you're a father or mother, identify manliness solely with physical fearlessness. There's more to manliness than that.

These are just thoughts set down, perhaps not very logically, but I know they are worth your thinking about. Many a boy has been bruised in spirit because his reluctance to bruise or be bruised in body was not evaluated.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 5—You don't have to be an international spy to figure out that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer bought the Nordhoff-Hall novel "High Barbaree" with Col. James Stewart in mind. There's been no word from Stewart for some time now, which has given rise to the rumor that he'll be back with us shortly. Cyril Hume is writing the screen play. The story's about a young flyer—a typical Stewart character. Everett Riskin, who's producing, has named Lt. A. A. Barton as technical adviser. Barton's been through the mill—survived a crash at sea and some very rugged going—so we'll have the lowdown on air war in this one. . . . Barbara Whiting, Twentieth's child comedienne, shoved her button nose into the biggest all-star cast Darryl Zanuck is planning for fall production. This 14 year old gets the role of Susannah in "Centennial Summer" with such veterans as Cornel Wilde, Constance Bennett, Linda Darnell and Dorothy Gish. I hear Jerome Kern and Leo Robin have written some snappy tunes, so Barbara, who has a good voice, will probably sing.

A Musical Star Is Born

Catherine McLeod, who was recently put under contract by the New York Theater Guild, has been released by them to Frank Borzage to play the lead feminine role in "Concerto." She's young, a stunning brunette, and a capable musician. She will play the piano as part of her interpretation of Myra Haasman, concert artist. Catherine is one of three Bliss-Hayden players to land in good spots during the last fortnight. That's giving the Pasadena playhouse a run for its money. The other two are Barbara Billingsley, signed by Metro, and Nancy Marlow, who goes into Leo Carrillo's revival of "The Bad Man."

Souvenir from Berchtesgaden

Men have lost their lives getting nazi helmets and pistols on the battlefield. But who, except Charles Correll [Andy of the famous Amos n' Andy team] has a tile from Hitler's bathroom at Berchtesgaden for a souvenir? When Andy was overseas, he saw all the sights, including Hitler's mountain hideout. The bathroom had some handsome tiles, all intact. Andy told the guard he'd give almost anything to have one. The guard replied he could take one if it could be removed without marring the surrounding wall. Andy rolled up his sleeves, snitched some tools from the repair kit of the jeep, and went to work. He had that tile out before you could say "Goebbels." Andy was a brick and tile man before he struck "'ile" on the ether.

He Takes a Chance and Wins

When Fred Brady, that handsome fast talking comedian, took his courage in hand and asked for a release from Metro where he'd done little or nothing for a year, he took a chance. Now he has landed the romantic lead opposite Marjorie Reynolds in Columbia's "Song of Broadway." Looks as tho the road's clear ahead. . . . Jack Carson picked up an original story by a soldier in the South Pacific. He's bringing it back and will submit it to Warner's as a possible vehicle. The story is by Pvt. George McGuire. It's about a soldier with claustrophobia who's assigned to a light tank battalion. That could be a sitcheeashun. . . . When Walter Cassel was in these parts six years ago, he was one of the "steen" thousand tested for Warner's "Desert Song." But no soap. Then the Metropolitan Opera wig-wagged him. Recently he came back to Hollywood as star of "Rose Marie" but there was no call from the studios. When the company got to San Francisco, Paramount phoned him furiously to come right back for a test. Ho, hum.

Around the Hollywoods

Guy Lombardo got in this morning for a six week stay. He'll do his airshow from Hollywood while working in "No Leave, No Love" at Metro. . . . And when Jack Dempsey returned bag, baggage, two daughters, and a governess, he found a house to live in right off the bat. It's the Los Feliz home he and Estelle Taylor used to live in during the good old days. . . . Arthur Hornblow tells me he's looking for an unknown for "Cass Timberlane." He wants an athletic type, 1946 model. Why not look in the current picture magazines? We've gotten some of our best ones that way. . . . If you're a Sydney Greenstreet fan [and who isn't?] you love his endless versions of the genus heel. In private life Sydney's an amiable fellow who loves his home, garden, and police puppy, age 6 months. Recently neighbors heard Greenstreet shouting in exasperation: "Heel . . . I say heel . . . I don't know what's wrong with this pup. I can't teach him the meaning of the word heel!" . . . When Harry James opens his own publishing house, the first two songs issued will be by wife Betty Grable. . . . Xavier Cugat bought a major interest in a big delicatessen while playing at the Ocean park boardwalk. That's keeping the food situation well in hand. . . . Arthur Murray gave Groucho Marx and his bride a pair of love birds for a wedding present. When Groucho was putting them in the cage they fought like tigers and bit his hands severely. No, for once Groucho didn't pull a laughie.

Thru the Looking Glass

There's a little box of beauty aids—a bargain, by the way—that we think of primarily as a find for the working girl, altho all women might be interested in its efficacy as an aid to summer facial freshness.

This is called a "liquid diet" for the complexion, and in a literal sense it is that. Item one is a thin, creamy liquid cleanser, light in texture, easy to apply and quick-as-a-wink in cleansing efficiency. Item two is a misty make-up base and item three is a rich lubricating oil, tho also light in texture, that's much more comfortable on the skin during stifling weather than heavy oils or creams.

You can get these things separately, of course, but at the moment they're also packaged in a little trio set that has special appeal for the woman who likes to experiment with cosmetics.

The liquid cleanser is delightful. It's an emulsion that cleanses thoroly and in a hurry, but that lubricates the skin at least a little bit at the same time. A few of the milky drops spread over the skin and removed with tissue will leave it immaculate—and not uncomfortably greasy.

The foundation has special summer attractions, too. It's thin as mist, and ever so faintly rose-tinted, and spreads on as evenly and softly as table cream might, leaving the skin beautifully receptive to the make-up that follows. It's a flatterer, and a freshener-upper for the heat-streaked face.

The night oil, of course, is not something you will find useful during the day, unless you can sneak hour intervals of privacy during which you can give your skin the kind of oil-soaking that it needs, but a day-time touch of it on the eyelids will help the skin there and give a flattering sheen. The oil itself is a good weapon against skin dryness.

Try this liquid diet; you'll like it.

Gleaming Satin Dresses Mark Shift in Seasons

BY REA SEEGER

Black satin dresses, surest sign of a shifting fashion season, shine out in the August collections with tantalizing effect. They are, for the most part, severely simple, thus dramatizing the shimmer of the satin. All of them are made with very short sleeves; many have the widened shoulder seams, extended well beyond the arms to serve as elaborate cap sleeves.

Gleaming satin is best when deftly shirred and draped to follow the curves of the body lines. And these 1945 fall versions are made with that suave shirred detail worked thru the waist line and half way down the center of the skirt as well as the bodice top. Many are belt-less, but if belts are used they usually are extremely narrow and of the same satin as the dress.

Skirts have a deeper flare, mostly in front. This is achieved with clever semi-circular cut to the front sections of the skirt, and when front fullness is not used, the satin is side swept, with a swag drapery held in position by looping thru the belt or shirred and buttoned firmly down the side seam. The usual bows and appliqued scroll bands and insets or motifs of the dull side of the satin are used effectively and with imagination to make the more distinctive shimmering all blacks so popular for the first fall and winter dress.

Gleaming satin hats, gloves, and bags are also in—ready for a complete ensemble in this sophisticated material. There are some smart gilets, and some blouses to wear with dull textured all black suits of thin black wool or the handsome faille, should the satin dresses prove too much gleam and shimmer for your choice.

The smartest contrast so far this season is the exciting combination of bronze pearl chokers and huge matching ear rings. A close second are the bright shiny gold metal costume jewelry, barbaric bracelets by the dozens, and the out-size earrings, the bigger the better.

Reports Poles Get 5 Tons of Tools from Rehabilitation Group

The American ORT [Organization for Rehabilitation thru Training] federation recently sent five tons of machines and tools to Poland, according to word received from World ORT headquarters by Mrs. Geraldine Friedman, executive secretary of the Chicago ORT council. Forwarded thru the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration in response to appeals from Dr. Emil Sommerstein, chairman of the Central Jewish Committee of Poland, the supplies include tailors' model sewing machines, tools for artisans, and equipment for vocational schools. The tools—intended for shoemakers, carpenters, electricians, and masons—were manufactured by the ORT school in Montreal, Que. A similar five ton shipment of supplies was sent from Canada to Poland last February.

Word also has been received that the ORT technical school in Budapest has been reopened. Such schools are established by the federation thruout the world to prepare Jews to be artisans.

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ

Q. 1—You are South, have 70 part score and hold:

♠ A J 10 4 ♥ J 5 2 ♦ A Q 6 3 ♣ J 8

Partner opens with one spade. What do you bid?

A.—Two spades. A response of two diamonds would be improper because with the advanced score partner is permitted to pass and that might not be the right contract. Allowance should be made for the possibility that partner has a strong hand and a mild chance afforded him to go on in case slam is attainable. If partner has an indifferent hand he will pass; if he has a very strong hand he can make a further try.

Q. 2—You are South, have 40 part score and hold:

♠ K 9 5 2 ♥ K J 10 7 4 ♦ 10 7 3 ♣ 4

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
3 diamonds	3 hearts	Double	Pass
Pass	4 clubs	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. First because you have no assurance that you can make four diamonds, and secondly because partner might be able to double four clubs which would be very acceptable to you since East is obviously bounding and you have his suit on well bottled up. If partner wants to bid four diamonds, the opportunity is there for him.

Q. 3—As dealer you hold:

♠ 10 9 8 3 ♥ J 4 ♦ K J 5 ♣ A K 5 2

What do you bid?

A.—One club. It would be poor tactics to pass this hand, because of the difficulty of entering the auction later with hands of this type. When all the plus values are counted the hand counts to three honor tricks and there is the further consideration that any response by partner may be handled with ease. Over one heart or one diamond bid one no trump. Over one spade, raise to two.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♠ 10 5 3 ♥ 7 5 2 ♦ A J 9 6 5 ♣ K 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 spade	2 hearts	?

What do you bid?

A.—Two spades. In view of the values held some action is indicated. A bid of three diamonds would be poor strategy, because if partner bids three spades, you will have no idea whether to go out or not. If you do, your will be placing yourself in a position of insisting upon game with a partner who may have a minimum hand. A free raise despite the shaded trump support obviates such problems for you.

Q. 5—Partner opens with two no trump and you hold:

♠ 10 6 ♥ 10 3 ♦ 9 5 2 ♣ Q 10 7 6 5 4

What do you bid?

A.—Three no trump. Strictly speaking you have not the required one-half honor trick with which to raise, but a three no trump bid is a fair gamble, because there is some chance that partner may bring in the club suit. Even if he is unable to he should not be badly hurt and surely no one can double. There is nothing to be gained by bidding three clubs and such response must be regarded as improper.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠ 6 5 ♥ K J 9 5 ♦ K 6 4 ♣ K J 10 9

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 spade	1 no trump	?

What do you bid?

A.—Double. You will probably win five tricks at no trump and partner can be counted on to take three or four, which means the opponents are distinctly overboard and should be made to pay the tax. If partner has a really good hand and can take more tricks no that your side could go game, the penalty will be all the more juicy.

Q. 7—Partner opens with one club and you hold:

♠ K 5 4 2 ♥ Q J 9 3 ♦ J 4 ♣ 10 7 3

What is your response?

A.—One heart. You have just enough to bid once and wish to make every effort to reach the best part score contract. This response is superior to one spade. If you had enough to bid twice you would respond with one spade intending to bid hearts later. The heart response is selected because if partner has four respectable spades he may still show them cheaply, whereas if you respond with one spade and partner has a four card heart suit, he may fear to bid it at the level of two if he has a mediocre hand.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠ A Q J 10 5 ♥ Q 5 2 ♦ 10 4 ♣ A 10 2

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	3 diamonds	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—5 clubs. When partner makes a first round slam try as in this case and then supports your suit, anything at all above a minimum justifies your taking further action. You have only a queen above a minimum, but the fact that your hand contains two controls is sufficient reason for giving partner one more chance.

CUBS AND WHITE SOX WIN DOUBLE HEADERS

BEAT REDS, 12-5 AND 2 TO 1; LEAD BY SIX GAMES

Becker's Hit Gives Passeau No. 12

BY EDWARD BURNS
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 5—The Cubs surged six games ahead of the second place Cardinals and 8½ ahead of the third place Dodgers this afternoon as they beat the Reds in a double header,

Heinz Becker

Claude Passeau

12 to 5 and 2 to 1. The Cards split with the Pirates and the Braves achieved an even break with the Dodgers.

The first game, Paul Erickson's sixth victory, tho he was relieved by Paul Derringer, saw the Cubs win easily thru a 22 hit attack. The second game, Claude Passeau's 12th triumph, was an entirely different kind of an encounter in which the Cubs had to wait till the sixth inning to wipe out a lead which the Reds gained in the first inning on Al Libke's homer.

And then the Cubs' winning rally was launched when Harry Lowrey reached first on Al Unser's error after striking out. The Cubs, by the way, have made 11 runs for Passeau in seven games since they gave him 24 against Boston on July 3.

31 Victories in 37 Games!

The double victory gave the National league leaders four out of five in the series with the Reds and 17 out of 18 in competition with the Cincies this year. The Cubs will start on their final invasion of the east with a record of 31 victories in 37 starts, including a string of 10 straight at the end of their last prior eastern trip.

All the Cub starters in the first game contributed to the 22 hit total. Phil Cavarretta, held hitless yesterday after running berserk in the twilight-night double header here Thursday, roared forth anew, making five hits, including a triple, in six times at bat for five runs batted in. In the second game Phil's one hit was essential to victory and he scored the winning run by following Lowrey across the plate on a game winning, pinch single by Heinz Becker.

Hack Opens 1st Game Attack

Stan Hack also went base hit crazy in the first game, making three doubles and a single and walking once. He scored four runs, all of them driven home by Cavarretta, who also drove in Johnson once. Thus in the twilight-night double header and the first game today the Cub captain drove in 13 runs.

Hack's two-bagger and singles by Johnson and Cavarretta gave the Cubs a run in the first inning of the first game. Paul Gillespie opened the three run second with a single. Len Merullo's walk and Erickson's infield bunt loaded the bases. Hack forced Gillespie at the plate, but Merullo scored when Johnson walked. Lowrey's single and Cavarretta's fly brought in two more runs.

Hack singled in the fourth and after the next two batters were retired Cavarretta tripled for a 5 to 0 lead. After Gillespie singled in the fifth, Merullo hit a homer, a line shot over the left field wall. Vern Kennedy relieved Howard Fox at the start of the sixth and blanked the Cubs for two innings.

Reds Rout Erickson

Eddie Miller opened the Reds' four run seventh with a single and Al Lakeman walked. Steve Mesner forced Lakeman and Pinch Batter Dick Sipek struck out. Woody Williams singled, scoring Miller, and Dain Clay doubled, scoring Mesner and Williams. When Libke's single brought in Clay, Derringer replaced Erickson. Frank McCormick forced Libke.

Against Mike Modak in the eighth the Cubs scored twice on hits by Lowrey, Cavarretta, Andy Pafko's fly, and Bill Nicholson's single. Hack's fourth hit and third double got the ninth under way. Johnson's infield hit and Lowrey's walk loaded

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

THERE have been 42 college coaches to serve with the All-Star football squad since the series was inaugurated in 1934. . . . They include almost every big name in the game. . . . The list includes the late Noble Kizer, Jimmy Crowley, Bernie Bierman, Bo McMillin, Harry Stuhldreher, Frank Thomas, Gus Dorais, Dick Hanley, Lynn Waldorf, Charles Bachman, Slip Madigan, Dr. C. W. Spears, Elmer Layden, Lou Little, Jimmy Phelan, Bernie Moore, Harry Kipke, Ray Pond, Bob Neyland, A. J. Robertson, Carl Snavely, Dr. E. N. Anderson, Buck Shaw, Don Faurot, Lowell Dawson, Tad Wieman, Fritz Crisler, Homer Norton, Babe Hollingbery, Bob Zuppke, Lon Stiner, Frank Leahy, Burt Ingwersen, Babe Horrell, Wallace Butts, Tony Hinkle, Henry Frnka, Howie Odell, Jeff Cravath, Jim Lookabaugh, Wes Fry, and Ray Eliot. . . . The Harlem Globe trotters basketball team appeared in 72 contests in military camps last season, leading its coach, Abe Saperstein, to claim that the Trotters were the busiest of all sports teams on the U. S. O. circuit. . . . Gene Tunney, who recently was honorably discharged from the navy after four years of service, is vacationing with his family in Maine. . . . In 1932 Mark Koenig, a castoff Yankee, helped the Cubs win the first of their three National league pennants in that decade. . . . The Yankees, discovering that the Cubs had cut in the shortstop for only a fourth of a share in the world series, used this as a psychological weapon in winning four straight games. . . . Thirteen years later the Cubs are bolstered by another former Yankee, Hank Borowy. . . . Wonder if the Cubs will make the same mistake this time.

When Homer Norton, football coach and athletic director at Texas A. & M., returned home after undergoing a major operation in Rochester, Minn., he was greeted at the train by the student body and 150 piece band. . . . Lt. Comdr. Larry Mullins, who has been made a staff officer of the naval air intermediate training command, will coach the football team at the Corpus Christi, Tex., navy air base. . . . It will be made up of enlisted men and cadets. . . . The team has two or three open dates which it is anxious to fill. . . . Several navy men have played in recent Chicago tennis and golf tournaments, but navy personnel is not permitted to play in Chicago's charity football game. . . . Joe Louis is only 15 pounds over his fighting weight. . . . Lt. Don Faurot, former Missouri and Iowa Seahawk coach, has been assigned to one of the new supercarriers and is in Bremerton, Wash., training for his billet. . . . He directed the Jacksonville Naval Air Station eleven last fall.

Premature Christmas

The moon looks down upon a summer night
And yet I watch a fireplace aglow,
The Christmas tree a fantasy of light
The flame of candles swaying to and fro.
The children play along our quiet street
Their laughter gently falling thru the air,
I hear instead the crunch of snowy feet
Returning from an hour of hymns and prayer.
And while the flowers bloom in gay parade
I see a holly wreath upon the door,
The table . . . O, how festively it's laid. . . .
The family gathered close, thank God, once more.

9 Cub Pitchers Contribute to Pennant Surge

Henry Wyse has won nine games and lost only one in the Cubs' pennant surge which started in the second game of the July 1 double header against the Giants in New York. Counting this game, the Cubs have won 31 and lost only 6 thru yesterday's double header victory over the Reds in Cincinnati.

Eight other Cub pitchers have contributed victories during this streak which has taken the team from four games back of Brooklyn, the July 1 pace setter, to the present six games in front of the second place Cardinals. Another, Lon Warneke, lost his only start.

Five have been unbeaten in this span. Ray Prim and Paul Derringer each has won five, Hank Borowy has taken both his starts, Bob Chipman has picked up one, and Ray Starr won in a relief role. Claude Passeau is the only pitcher who has been beaten more than once since July 1. He has lost two while winning four without too much offensive help. The suspended game of July 20 when the Dodgers were leading the Cubs, 10 to 4, is not included.

The victory march in figures, defeats being represented by pitchers' names in capitals:

BY WILFRID SMITH

Bill Huber, Notre Dame end, and Bill Willis, tackle on Ohio State's undefeated Western conference championship team last fall, will play against the Green Bay Packers in Soldiers' field Aug. 30 in the annual All-Star game. Both were members of the 1944 college squad which was defeated by the Chicago Bears, 24 to 21.

The All-Star squad, which begins training next Sunday at Northwestern university, also is strengthened today by the acquisition of John Harrington, who played end for two years at Marquette university; William Mayther, University of Oregon center, and Paul Sizemore, who played end at Furman university and competed in the last two All-Star games before entering military service.

In the two All-Star games in 1943 and 1944 against the Washington Redskins and the Bears, respectively, Sizemore caught 10 passes thrown by Lt. Glenn Dobbs.

Experienced Against Pros

Sizemore and Huber, in particular, give Bernie Bierman, head coach of the All-Stars, and his assistants, a pair of ends experienced in competition against the professionals. Sizemore played three years at Furman and at the same time received varsity awards in baseball, track, and basketball. He is 26, weighs 200 pounds, and is 6 feet 3 inches tall. He was graduated with a degree of bachelor of science. He now is stationed at Fort Benning, Ga.

After playing at Notre Dame, where he was regarded as one of the finest sophomore ends in Irish history, Huber continued competition with Camp Grant's Warriors. He now is stationed at Colorado Springs. Bill is 22 years of age, weighs 205 pounds, and is 6 feet 3 inches tall. His home is in Tuscola, Ill. Huber shared the left end position on the 1944 All-Star team with Jack Dugger of Ohio State, who also returns this year to play against the Packers.

Willis needs no introduction to Western conference football fans. He was a stalwart in the line at left tackle and his performance on attack and defense left nothing to be desired. Bill is 23 years of age, weighs 207 pounds, and is 6 feet 2 inches tall. Last year Willis was voted the most aggressive tackle on the All-Star squad by his teammates.

Willis' home is in Columbus, O., where he attended East High school. He was graduated this year with a bachelor of science degree and this fall he will be director of athletics and head football coach at Kentucky State college.

A Touchdown Against Wisconsin

Harrington, whose home is in Milwaukee, received two varsity football awards at Marquette and now

Call for Musicians

MUSICIANS who wish to join the College All-Star band, which will appear in Soldiers' field the night of the All-Star game, Aug. 30, are asked to communicate with Ray Dvorak, director of bands at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis.

WHITE SOX IRON MAN GOES TO WORK

Mike Tresh, veteran White Sox catcher, dons his working clothes for another day at work. Tresh was a convenient fellow to have around yesterday. He singled home the first run of the ninth inning in the second game and he scored the winning run in absentia—so to speak—to beat the Tigers. Joe Orengo ran for Tresh in the ninth and he tallied on Wally Moses' game ending single.

41ST AMATEUR GOLF TOURNEY TO OPEN TODAY

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

The 41st annual City Amateur golf tournament, oldest event of its kind in these parts, will open at 7 o'clock this morning with an 18 hole medal play qualifying round at Jackson park, its site for more than two score years. Low scorers today will gain places in the match play bracket, beginning with 32 bouts tomorrow. Man-to-man competition will continue thruout the week, concluding with Saturday's 36 hole championship match.

Chick Evans, the Edgewater veteran who celebrated his 55th birthday last month and who won the championship last year, after a lapse of 33 years, will return to defend his title, the same he won as a 17 year old in 1907. Evans repeated in 1908 and 1911, was runner-up in 1942 and then won last summer's tournament from Harold Mathisen, the south side chemist who registers from St. Andrew's. Evans, 1 down at the 18 hole turn, squared the match on the 21st, and came on to make one of the 1944 sports season's greatest comebacks for a 3 and 2 victory.

Mathisen, only man other than Evans to win the city championship four times also will be on hand this week. Officials of the Jackson Park club anticipate an entry which will exceed last year's record breaking 296.

Chicagoan's Eleven Fails Manila Test

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

MANILA, Aug. 5—Fifteen thousand GIs, augmented and assisted by several thousand WACs, nurses, officers, and Filipinos, hollered themselves hoarse here this afternoon as the Air Corps beat the Engineers, 7 to 0, in the opening football game of the Manila Bowl league.

To get the unessential—except to sports experts—facts out of the way first, Chester Robinson, 205 pound quarter back from Oklahoma City and the University of Tennessee, scored the only touchdown of the game during the final three minutes when he plunged across the goal from the 4 yard line, carrying a good share of the Engineer line with him.

The More the WACs Dance the Louder the Cheers

Robinson then kicked the goal to add the extra point, and the thousands of air corps people who had reserved a section for themselves just about went wild. Their two bands joined in playing "Nothing Can Stop the Army Air Corps." Their two cheerleaders, Matt Greensweig, Eldora, Ia., and Don Larrabee, Gorham, Me., jumped up and down, and their three WAC beauties, Daisy Ross, Brooklyn, N. Y., Mickie Ragsdale, Atlanta, Ga., and Bobbie Gerlack, Beaver Falls, Pa., decked out in white blouses, yellow shorts, and white shoes, danced. The more they danced the more the air corps people cheered.

Thruout the game the masses of GIs, with the exception of the air corps, who were prejudiced, generally cheered whichever team appeared to be taking a beating.

Bob Boehme, Chicagoan, Coaches the Engineers

Bob Boehme, 2548 E. 77th st., Chicago [his father, Bob Sr., works in THE TRIBUNE maintenance department], who played right half at Michigan State and now coaches the Engineer Manila bowl team, didn't worry much about the lack of a band or cheer leaders but the weight difference bothered him, together with the fact that his 29 man squad had been practicing only 10 days and today was the first time it had been completely assembled.

ANDERSSON AND WOODERSON TO RUN MILE TODAY

LONDON, Aug. 5 (AP)—Hopes of seeing a four minute mile will draw 40,000 fans to London's White City stadium tomorrow to see a pair of former record holders, Sweden's Arne Andersson and Britain's Sidney Wooderson, match strides at the distance.

SENATORS WHIP BOSTON TWICE, 5 TO 4 AND 5 TO 1

SOUTH SIDERS WHIP TIGERS 3D AND 4TH IN ROW

Take 1st Game, 12-8 and 2d, 3-2

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

The White Sox not only tightened up the American league race yesterday, but continued with their role of guys who can't be trimmed on their home grounds on a Sunday. They pulled back the pace setting Tigers in both ends of a double header, 12 to 8 and 3 to 2, leaving the Detroiters with only a half game hold on first place. And it was the eighth twin Sabbath success registered by the James Dykes boys in Comiskey park this season.

Altho weather cut a prospective 40,000 crowd to 17,154, the Sox didn't go sparingly on the dramatics simply because of the fall-off in business. They put it on properly in the first game by clubbing the noted Paul Trout into submission after the gentleman had a four run lead. And in the second game they did nothing until the ninth inning when they rushed across three runs against Les Mueller to dodge a 2 to 0 defeat that apparently had been built up by the Tigers at the expense of Thornton Lee.

York Hits Homer in 8th

The Tigers had the first game under control because of what they did to the right handing of Bill Dietrich. The bespectacled lad was in there for four innings during which time six Tigers slipped across the plate, two of them because Hank Greenberg exploded a home run. The hitting display against Dietrich carried Trout into the sixth with a 6 to 2 edge but the Sox nailed him into a tie at that point and in the next innings chased him to cover with another assault that netted four runs, the latter bringing on season's victory No. 1 for John Johnson who finished for Dietrich.

In his second game duel with Mueller, the veteran Lee, altho hit more or less freely, held his own until the seventh when, after retiring the first two batters, was unexpectedly buffeted by three successive hits. Mueller started this with one of his three hits, getting around to the plate with the first run of the game on singles by Joe Hoover and Eddie Mayo. Then Rudy York sent his seventh home run of the season into the left field seats in the eighth to make it 2 to 0.

Tiger Hits Bout Dietrich

There was one out in the ninth when the Sox cut loose with the sniping under which Mueller rapidly wilted. Oris Hockett singled to center and Cass Michaels shot a one baser into left. Mike Tresh singled to center, Hockett scoring and Michaels going to third where he intended to stop. Unexpected developments in the shape of a bad throw in by Jim Outlaw made it possible for him to proceed homeward with the tying run. By the time the ball was retrieved close to the grandstand, Tresh was on third where Joe Orengo took over the running. Then after Tony Cuccinello had failed as a pinch batter Wally Moses stepped into the setting with a single, driving in the deciding run.

The Tigers, to all appearances, began to sew up the first game in the third inning when Greenberg changed a 2 to 2 tie into a 4 to 2 margin by exploding his No. 5 homer. The Tiger lead increased to 6 to 2 in the fourth when Swift walked, Webb and Mayo singled, and Cullenbine doubled. At the end of this inning Boss Dykes decided he had seen enough of Dietrich for one day.

Overmire Also Ineffective

Hockett singled and Michaels walked to open the sixth, but Trout retired the next two guys and then more or less intentionally walked Moses, deeming the latter dangerous. Farrell stepped into this choice situation with a double to right, Hockett and Michaels scoring. Then the Tigers did nothing about catching a fly raised over short left center by Schalk and the resulting single scored the two runs needed for a tie.

The deadlock began to fall apart in the seventh when Hockett beat out a single with one out and continued to second on York's bad throw to Trout who covered the bag. Michaels singled and Hockett scored. When Tresh singled, the illustrious Trout welcomed the heave ho, leaving the place for Overmire who quickly regretted he had responded as a rescuer. Johnson, Moses, and Farrell greeted him with singles for three more runs.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

BRITISH STRIVE TO HOLD CASH IN ELECTION WAKE

Transfers to U. S. Caches Reported

BY E. R. NODERER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON Aug. 5—Many wealthy British are contacting American friends here in an attempt to transfer part of their wealth to the United States before the Laborites start their plan to nationalize the key industries.

The most common suggestion is that a British business man deposit funds to the credit of an American in London while the American deposits an equivalent amount in dollars in a bank in the United States for the Briton. This is illegal but some deals of this nature are expected to occur particularly if the British become worried enough to offer a premium.

Availability Is No Factor

The British are not concerned with the date when they can reacquire or use any such funds sent abroad. What they would like to do is remove their funds while they still have them.

Since mail censorship has ended it is easier to get away with such transactions. During war time mail inspection frustrated most attempts to evade exchange controls which held transfers to a maximum of $40 except by special permit.

Since the Labor landslide British investors have been switching from sterling securities to American dollar stocks dealt in on the London market. The number of these available is limited, however.

Some Buy Indian Stocks

Some traders also have switched to Indian rupee securities, particularly iron and steel and municipal transportation stocks. The latter are public utilities but have a guaranteed return. The purchase of Indian stocks apparently is on the assumption that India will not be nationalized to the extent of Britain, but Indian representatives said this may prove a false assumption.

The Laborites have announced they intend to nationalize coal, iron and steel, internal transport, gas, electricity, and the Bank of England, with the bank first. What concerns investors is that it has not been made plain how the government will pay for outstanding stocks and bonds of these industries. Many would like to unload their holdings and get their money out of the country before the government takes over, at least until it becomes clear just what Labor has in mind.

EMERSON RADIO

I shall appreciate information regarding Emerson Radio and Phonograph corporation.—I. E.

During the last three years Emerson Radio's facilities have been devoted to the manufacture of radio and other electronic equipment for the army and navy. After war time restrictions are lifted, it will resume production of small radio receiving sets, a field in which the company was one of the pioneer and leading manufacturers. It plans to make compact television receivers, small frequency modulation sets, table model phonograph and radio combinations, and pocket and portable receivers, in addition to the table model electric and farm radios.

Altho Emerson was incorporated in 1924, the first public offering of its stock was a secondary distribution in 1943. Consequently the available earnings record covers only the last five fiscal years, ended Oct. 31. Based on the present sole capitalization of 400,000 shares, the earnings per share increased from 76 cents in 1940 to $1.90 in 1941. For 1942 they were $1.63; 1943, $1.51; 1944, $1.82. In the six months ended last May the profit was $1.29 compared with $1.14 a year earlier.

Three 15 cent dividends have been paid so far this year. In 1944 the payments totaled 90 cents and in 1943, 25 cents. Certain restrictions on dividends are included in a VT loan agreement.

Army Getting Early Birds for Holidays

Acting early to assure every man and woman in service a turkey dinner both for Thanksgiving and Christmas the army quartermaster corps is buying all turkeys marketed in 23 states of largest production, leaving few for civilians. The procurement program is conducted by the department of agriculture.

Officials of the department's office of marketing services explained yesterday the order was put into effect as early as April 8. With the distances involved eight or nine months must be allowed for all the turkeys to reach their final destinations.

Civilians Will Get More

Civilians, however, may count on a larger supply for Thanksgiving and Christmas than last year and well above the pre-war average, OMS officials said. The latest government estimate is for production of 575 to 600 million pounds in 1945. After military requirements are satisfied, 3.55 pounds per person will be available for civilians against 3.3 pounds in 1944 and 2.6 pounds before the war.

Military turkey requirements have been carefully worked out by the department of agriculture and the quartermaster corps. Farmers in the designated areas are required to sell their birds to authorized buyers or processors. Processing plants approved by the army veterinary corps apply for authorization to dress turkeys under the provisions of the order.

Transported by Many Methods

Once in the hands of the army, the turkeys are stored in warehouses as near seaboard as possible, then loaded on refrigerated boats and shipped to the fighting fronts. From overseas warehouses, the turkeys will be distributed by rail, truck, jeeps, tanks, or any method of transportation necessary. To reach isolated outposts, the birds will be transported by plane and parachuted into clearings hacked out of the jungle. Where it is impossible to deliver dressed turkey, the army assures delivery of canned turkey.

Turkey at Thanksgiving and Christmas has turned out to be one of the biggest morale factors on the fighting front in the two years that the procurement program has been in effect, officials said.

"The ration fed to the United States army in Europe is the best that any army ever had," Gen. Patton commented last Christmas.

STEEL OUTPUT STAYS HIGH THO PRESSURE EASES

Cleveland, O., Aug. 5 (AP)—Overall steel order pressure has eased, but heavy requirements continue to burden mill books, the trade magazine Steel said today.

"Operating rates have reached midsummer without having gone more than a trifle below 90 per cent of capacity with prospects promising continued active demand for months ahead," it asserted. "Trade leaders, after Germany's fall, predicted the major dip in steel ingot production would come not later than July or early August and would not go lower than 85 per cent while Japan remained fighting.

"This prediction is more than borne out by present conditions. Cancellations are being received more freely, but there also is much new tonnage."

AFL Board Meets Today to Fix Policy

BY GEORGE HARTMANN

For the first time since the American Federation of Labor was founded in 1881 it will not hold its annual convention this year because of war time travel restrictions. This places the federation's executive board, which opens its 10 day meeting in the Drake hotel this morning, in a unique situation.

In previous years the executive board has spent its August meeting in preparing a report of its activities and actions for presentation to the fall convention.

Comprehensive Report

This board meeting, of which William Green, president of the AFL, is chairman, will prepare a report, Green announced, which will "embody all the great national and international problems affecting the nation's workers and will put emphasis on measures necessary to attain full employment after victory over Japan." The report will be sent directly to the AFL membership.

Among the major issues to come before the board will be higher wages, social security legislation, unemployment compensation, speedier reconversion, and prompt post-war removal of governmental controls over labor and business.

AFL leaders will urge President Truman and congress to take immediate steps to provide employment during the reconversion and post-war period "to prevent a business crash," officials said.

Sen. Vandenberg's suggestion to Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach to call an industrial peace conference of leading representatives of industry, labor, and government, also will be submitted to determine whether the AFL will participate.

New Wage Policy

Officials in Chicago for the AFL building and construction trades department meeting disclosed that the AFL board expects to be informed that the war labor board has approved a new wage policy.

They said that President Green has learned that the "new policy" will allow voluntary wage increases even tho they go beyond the limits of the little steel formula when the employer certifies he will not seek corresponding increases in prices.

It also was said that the WLB will be given authority to order wage boosts above the formula in exceptional cases, even if higher price ceilings are required. This would be the case when downgrading, loss of incentive pay, and reduction of overtime earnings would cause real hardship to workers and impair their living standards.

Air Express Shipments Rise 27 Per Cent in June

Air express shipments handled by domestic air lines during June rose 27.2 per cent from a year earlier, the air express division of Railway Express agency announced yesterday. Shipments numbered more than 176,700 compared with about 138,400 in June, 1944. Gross revenue rose 41.4 per cent.

JACK & HEINTZ SLASHES HOURS TO SPREAD JOBS

Cleveland, O., Aug. 5 [Special]—Workers at the Jack & Heintz company plant in Cleveland will go on a 40 hour week immediately to avoid further lay-offs and permit the retention of laid off ex-service men and wives of service men, William S. Jack, president, announced today.

The company, which now employs about 7,200 men and manufactures precision instruments for the army air forces, has been on a 55 hour work week. It once had an 84 hour week and has won nation-wide attention by its high production records, huge bonuses for all employes, and luxurious expense-paid vacations.

Jack made his announcement at a meeting of the JAHCO Veterans' club held in Cleveland's public hall and attended by about 3,000 of the company's "associates," as Jack designates all employes.

Breaks Up in Disorder

The hall was the scene yesterday of a meeting of 5,000 company workers who are members of the AFL International Association of Machinists. This meeting broke up in disorder after Jack had asked permission to speak.

The union had called the meeting to take a vote on proposals that seniority rights be waived in instances where lay-offs would otherwise affect former service men hired since leaving the army and not previously employed at JAHCO, or wives of service men who were employed by JAHCO before entering the army. When union officers were unable to call the meeting to order they declared an adjournment. At today's meeting Jack said the area man power office had approved the 40 hour week.

Acuses Union of Duplicity

Regarding July lay-offs, he said that all of the 117 veterans who drew lay-offs have already been rehired and that jobs have been restored to half of the 220 wives let out and the others notified to return.

Jack said that leaders of the union had attempted duplicity in yesterday's attempted vote on the question of seniority waivers in behalf of veterans by phrasing the ballot in a misleading manner.

"This company is no place for crooks, grafters, or racketeers in labor," he asserted. He urged workers to attend union meetings and help elect to office "clean, honest men" as their representatives.

"This is not the end of it," commented one union leader.
